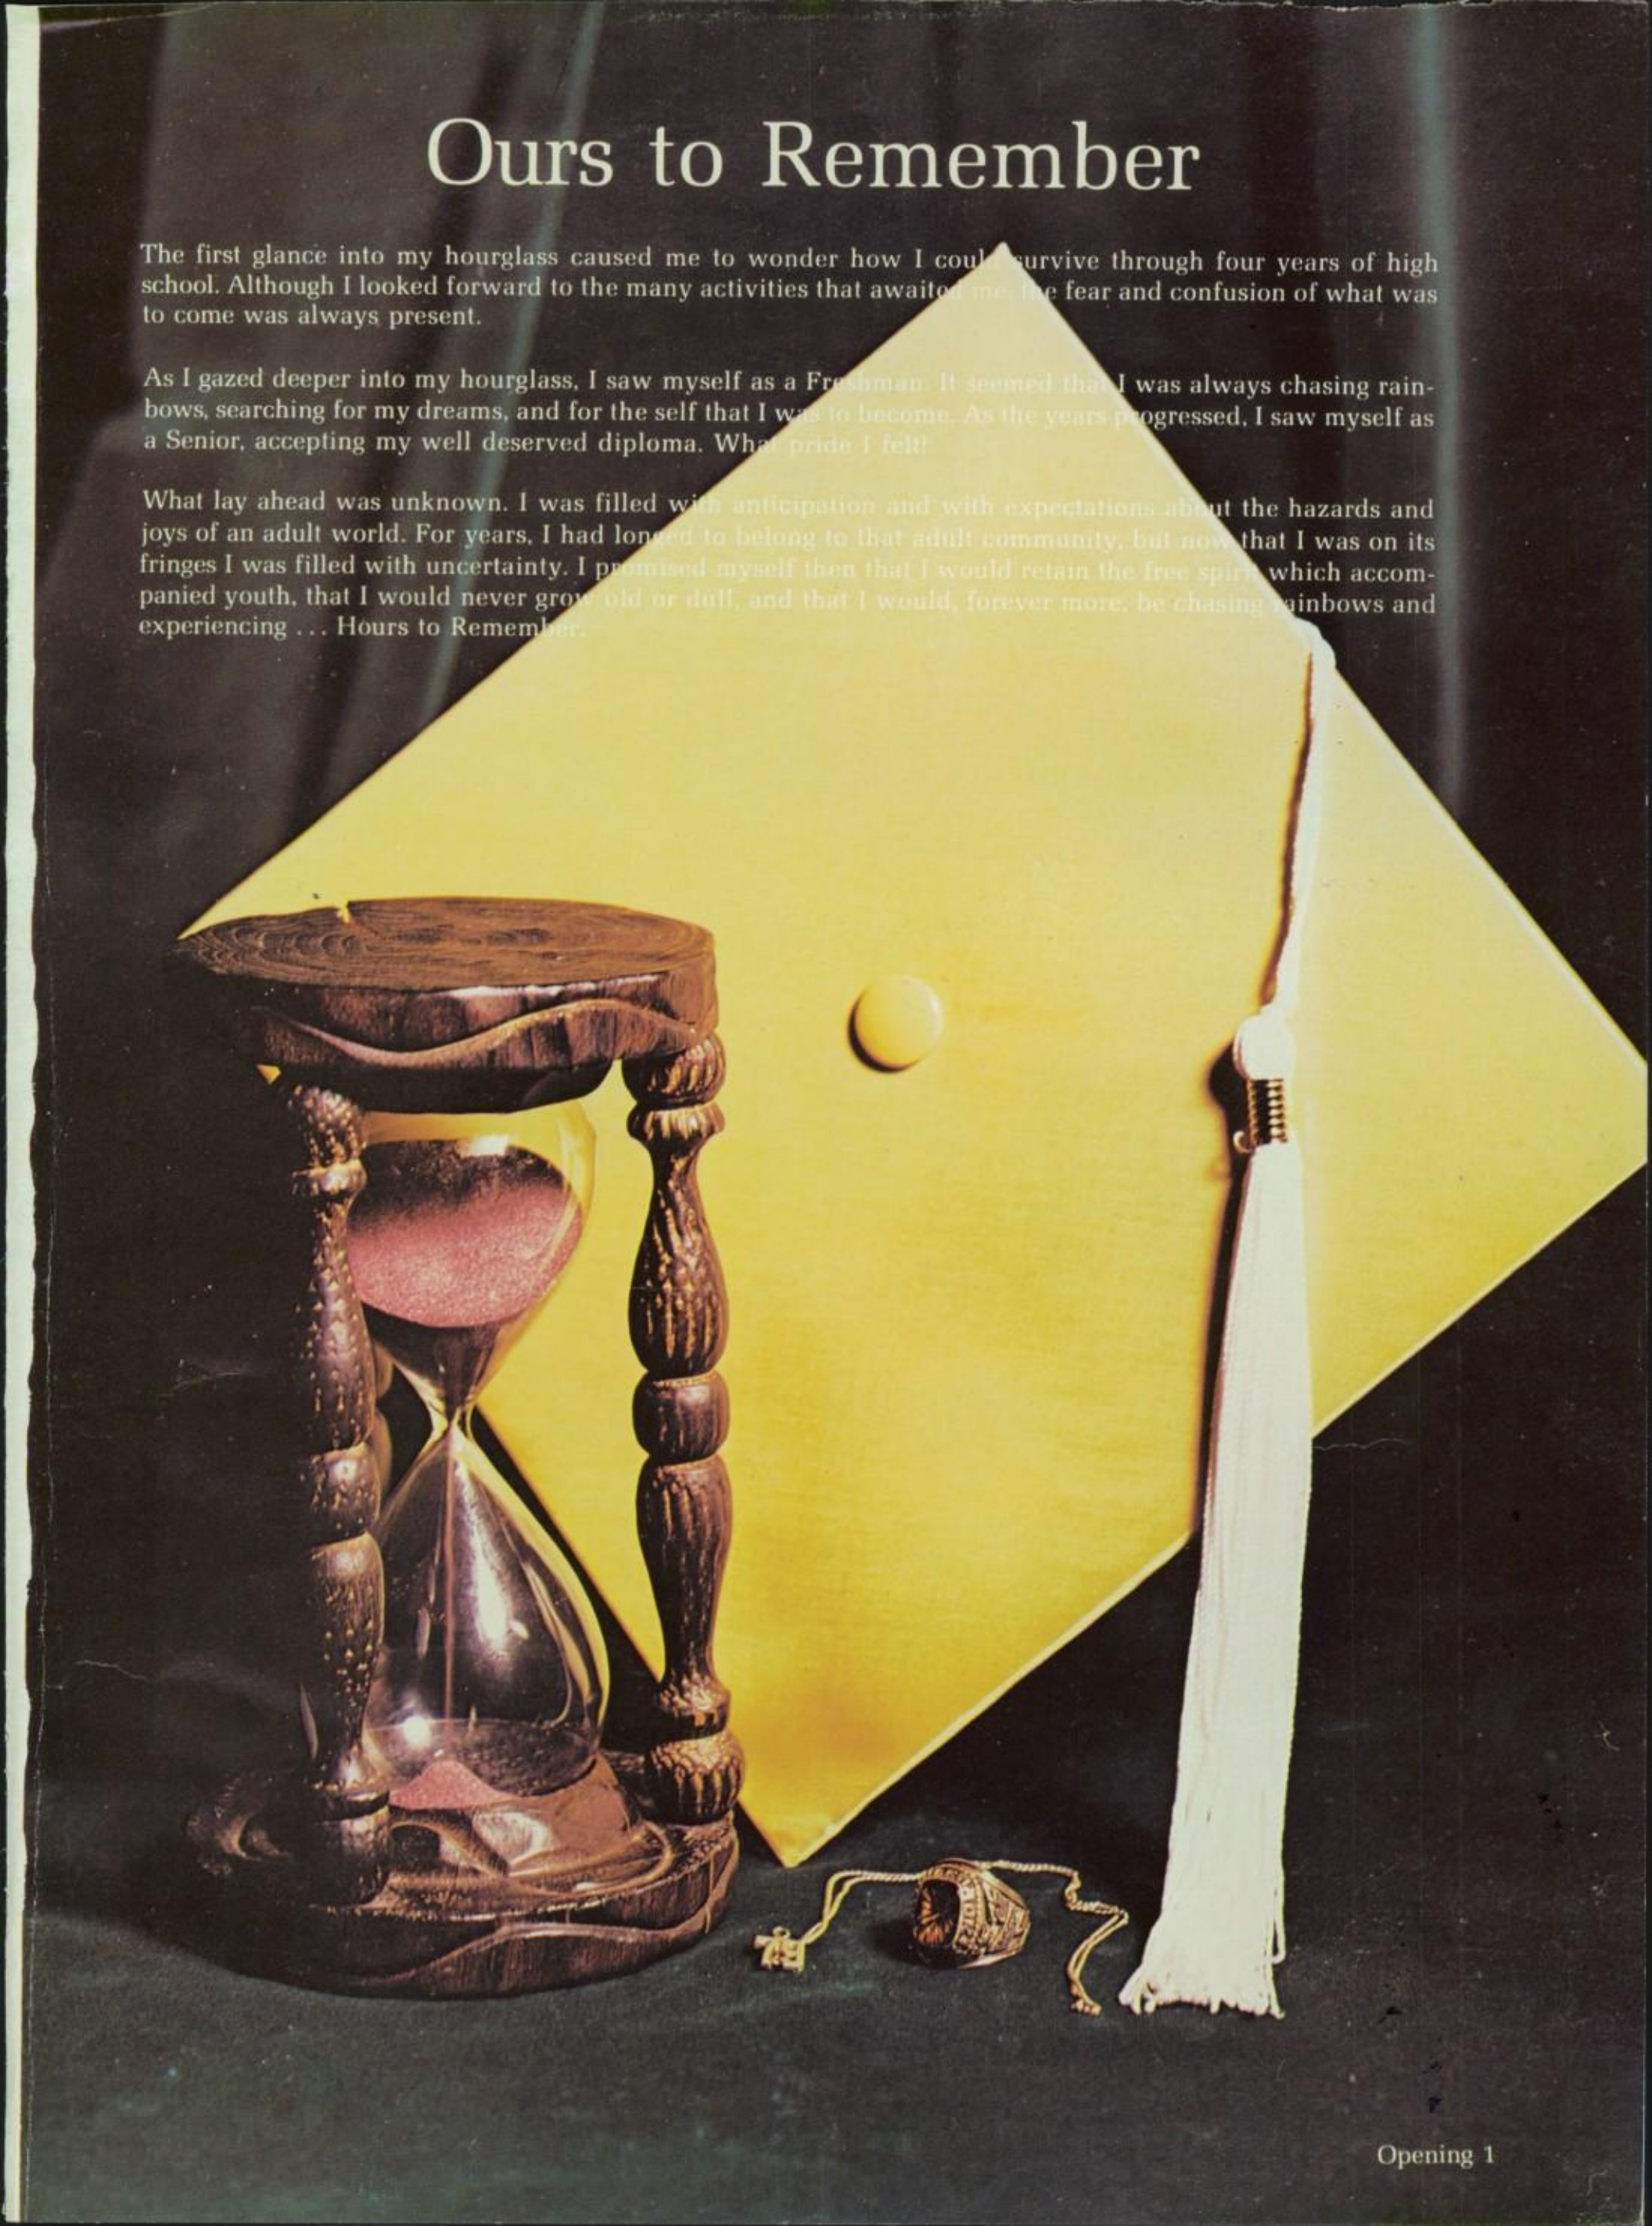
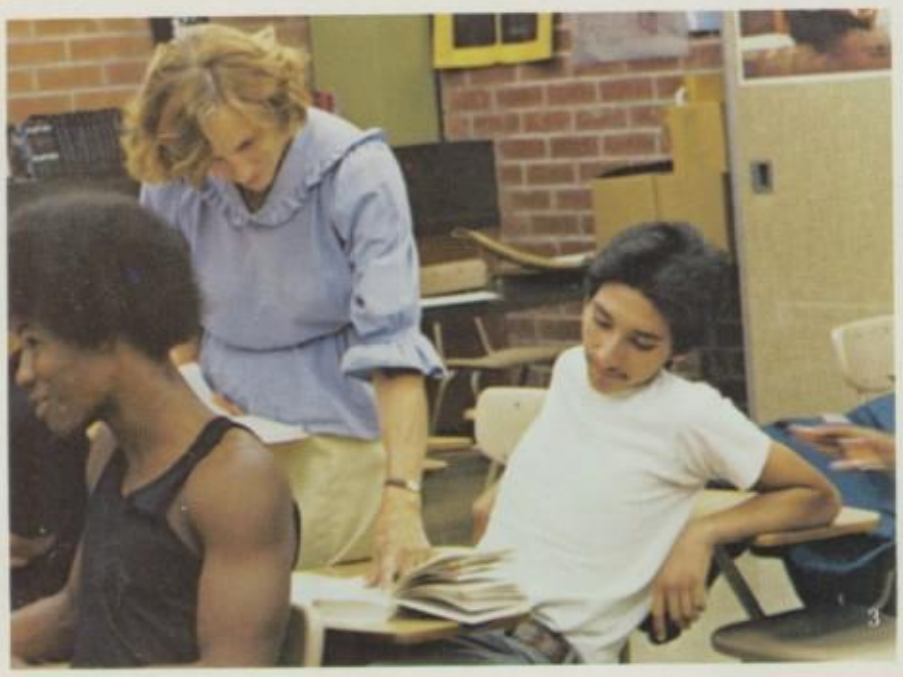
Ours to Remember

The first glance into my hourglass caused me to wonder how I could survive through four years of high school. Although I looked forward to the many activities that awaited me, the fear and confusion of what was to come was always present.

As I gazed deeper into my hourglass, I saw myself as a Freshman. It seemed that I was always chasing rainbows, searching for my dreams, and for the self that I was to become. As the years progressed, I saw myself as a Senior, accepting my well deserved diploma. What pride I felt!

What lay ahead was unknown. I was filled with anticipation and with expectations about the hazards and joys of an adult world. For years, I had longed to belong to that adult community, but now that I was on its fringes I was filled with uncertainty. I promised myself then that I would retain the free spirit which accompanied youth, that I would never grow old or dull, and that I would, forever more, be chasing rainbows and experiencing . . . Hours to Remember.





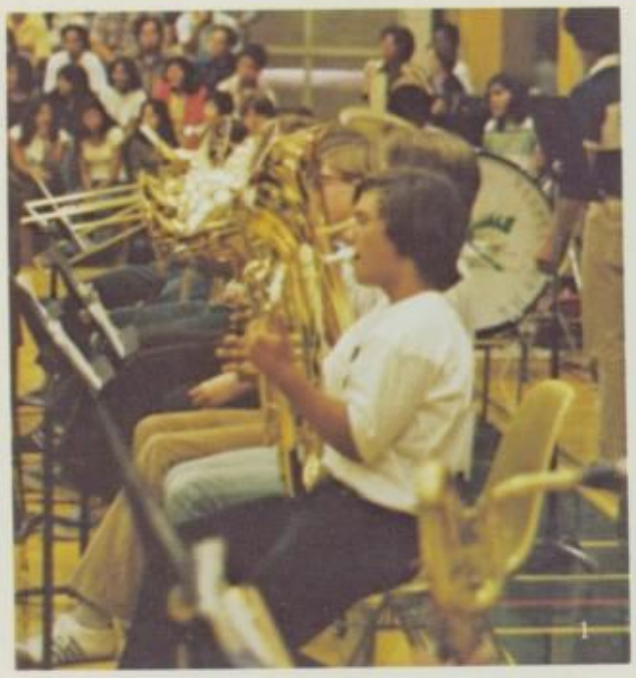
Red

(red) adj. 1. to become angry. 2. bright or glowing.

The colors of the rainbow represented bright moments in our lives. Red was one of the many colors that filled us with warm memories. Red was symbolic of the happiest birthday we ever had and further reminded us of beautiful days when we could have been enjoying nature. Red served as a symbol of those high school romances which ranged from simple infatuation to our first true love. We were also reminded of our maturation from gangling freshmen to sophisticated seniors. The color red not only made us think of Christmas Eve stockings or Valentines Day Hearts, but it also gave us a sense of pride towards ourselves and our country. After pounding the red cover of MacGruder's Government book, many seniors were proud to find that they had passed their government final. Likewise, the student body felt a new sense of pride as they daily saluted the flag's red, white, and blue hues.

Our heightened emotions and maturity continued to influence us as we accepted the rights and responsibilities of the adult society.

1. Saddleback drummers, Dave Lopez and Steve Miller practice in early morning hours.
2. Tourist day gives senior class President Joh Tuin a chance to show off his Mickey Mouse tee-shirt.
3. Helping Al Gomez to improve his reading skills is his English teacher, Mrs. Mary Lindley.
4. Pride and enthusiasm is shown by Varsity cheerleader Leslie Lawton at all football games.
5. Many students find that pedaling a bicycle is an easy way to get around.
6. A hot lunch is welcomed warmth on a cold school day.
7. Wearing her best red dress, Tami Cole participates in Halloween dress-up day.
8. Luis Verino spends his lunch hour talking on the telephone.



1. Displaying an unique talent, Rick Corpel plays his baritone during a band performance.
2. During a crucial moment of the football game, Eddie Herrera makes a quick pass.
3. Showing their school spirit, Laura Mencum and Nancy Cutler model their extraordinary fashions.
4. Taking time out from her daily activities to get something from her locker is Tammy Soto.
5. Spirited Saddleback students participate in the "Toilet Paper Race" during Spirit Week.
6. Junior Varsity Cheerleader, Monica Zaremski is pleased with the outcome of the assembly.
7. After the victorious homecoming game, the pep squad and football team join in the singing of the Alma Mater.

Orange

(ora'nj) n. 1. A sweet round fruit grown in Southern California. - adj. 1. A color ranging between red and yellow and falls second on the rainbow.

As the year began, we were on a rainbow colored slide filled with tinted feelings. The majority of the students fell on a color named orange. Just as we were filled with a combination of feelings, orange, too, was a combination of colors. The colors, then mixed with our happy and sad moments to create our orange colored world. All of our emotions came together in a burst of feeling—our Saddleback pride.

Only the word sweet could be used to describe the 1978-1979 school year. The memories of the beautiful girls, the victorious football team and the school pride that prevailed could never be lost. For the first time Saddleback experienced a tremendous feeling of spirit, a spirit that brought the students together and made them proud to say that they were from Saddleback High School.

We pushed the limit and took the journey over our rainbow. Now, the year was over and due to our understanding of the school and ourselves we were proud of our spirited accomplishments. We were involved and would always remember the adjective meaning of orange as being the second color of the rainbow, signifying a second phase of our multi-colored lives.

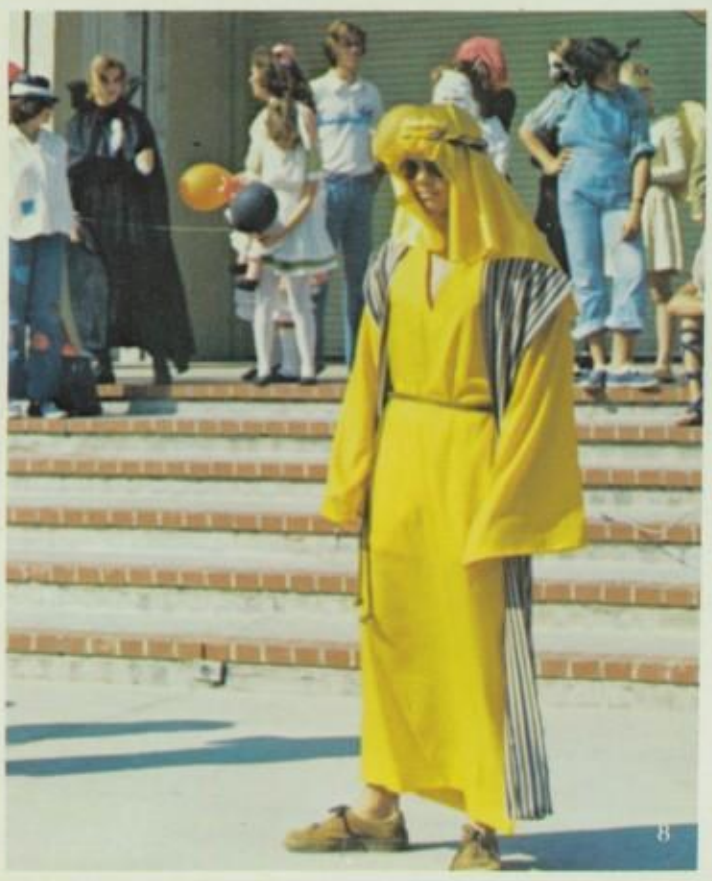
Yellow

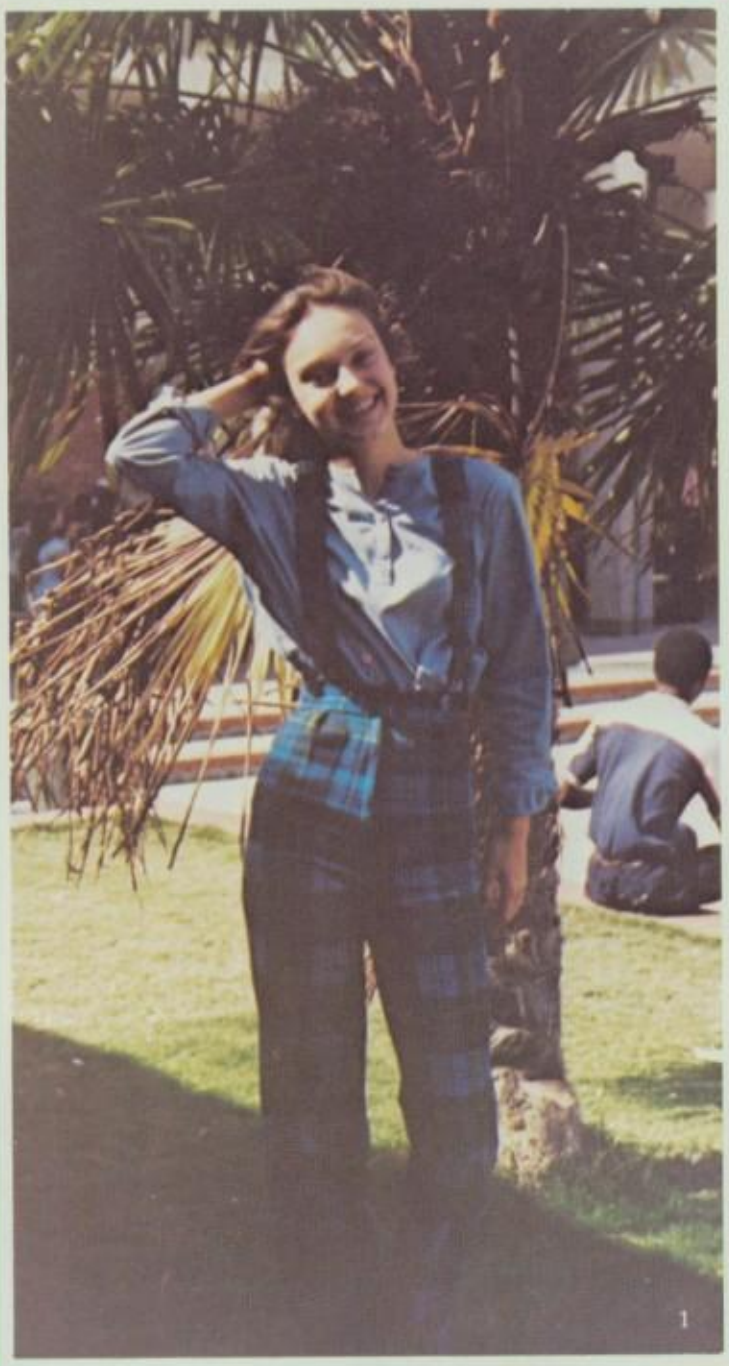
(yel-ō) adj. 1. Melancholy or jealous. 2. The color of the spectrum between green and orange. 3. Cowardly or mean.

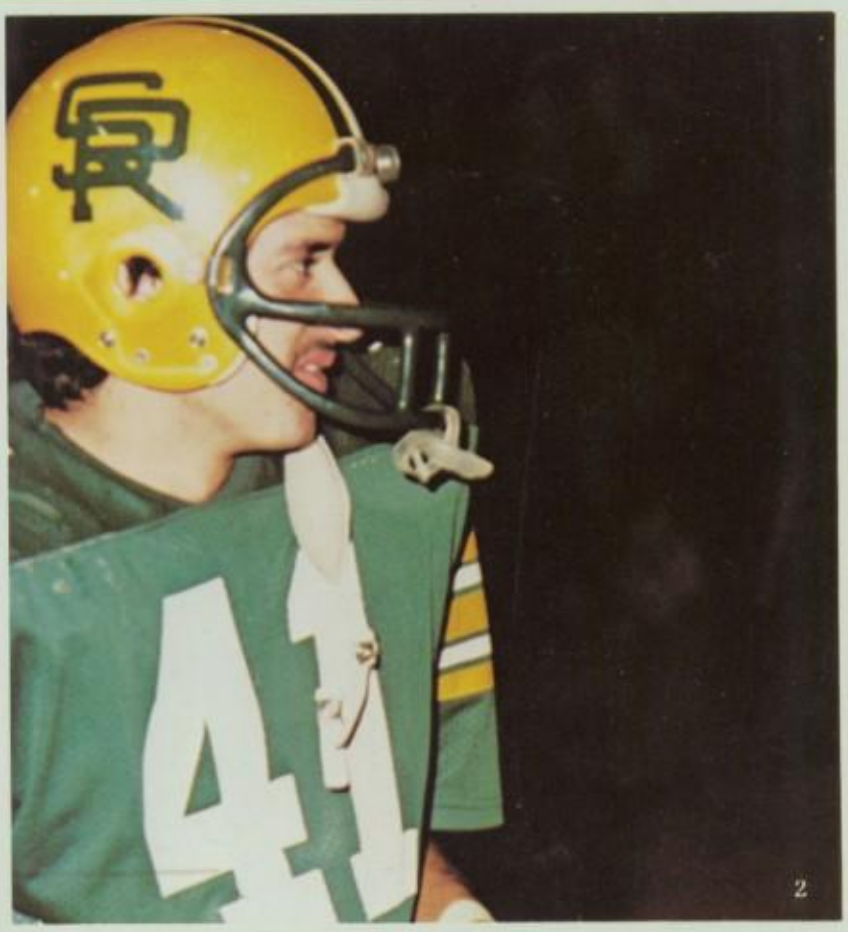
At football games, the brilliant yellow of the drill team's uniforms and football team's helmets added a colorful atmosphere to the mood of the game. The new-found spirit was a pleasant surprise to all. Whether students displayed it in formal assemblies and pep rallies, or in informal groups at football games, spirit was a prevailing factor throughout our school year. Students not only displayed school spirit at games and assemblies, but they also showed spirit by purchasing "voodoo" dolls. They also painted posters to bolster our team's morale. Whether on the field or on the courts, our athletic teams were among the best. Saddleback spirit was certainly envied.

While the color yellow represented enthusiasm and spirit, it also signified the close of the 1978-1979 school year and its electrifying spirit and pride.



1. On Halloween Dress-up Day, students vie for first prize at the contest.
2. Snolyn White finds herself engrossed in her school studies.
3. The Varsity football players applaud their teammates efforts.
4. Finding herself in melancholy mood, Stephanie Madrid contemplates her future.
5. Members of the Drill Team jump to their feet as a basket is scored.
6. Holding spirit balloons and ribbons, Robby James and Danny Clark create their school spirit.
7. During the Homecoming game, Kathi Railey and Sondra Parrot lead the crowd on.
8. Masquerading as an oil magnate, the identity of the shiek alludes the crowd.





1. Modeling a fall fashion is Kathi Railey.
2. Hearing impaired football player, Javier Hernandez, anxiously awaits the outcome of the game.
3. With a change in the A.S.B. constitution, Marie Occasion, Lena Wood, and Janet Waataja become the first Freshman class officers to be members of the executive council.
4. The sophomore class enthusiastically accepts the spirit stick awarded to them at a pep assembly.
5. A newcomer on campus, Camilla Immerstrand, was the first S.I.S. exchange student to attend Saddleback High School.
6. Selected to serve as Assistant Principal of Curriculum, Mrs. Nancy O'Connor reviews the schools 1978-1979 Education Plan.
7. Lupe Warnick, a Freshman Drill team member, enjoys the Friday pep assemblies.

Green

(grēn) Adj. 1. full of life or vigor 2. fresh, recent or new.

There were many changes on campus in the 1978-1979 school year. In October Mrs. Nancy O'Connor became the new assistant principal of curriculum.

Upon completion of Spring tryouts, Freshmen, for the first time in SHS history, were allowed to participate in Drill team.

Our Varsity Football Team took on a new look as they had a very impressive season. They entered C.I.F. competition for the first time in seven years. Another change in our football team was the addition of a hearing impaired player, Javier Hernandez. Javier was the only hearing impaired player to ever play on a Varsity level team in Orange County.

School spirit was incredible! At assemblies, football games, and at noontime activities, the entire student body was involved. People wanted to belong.

With all the changes, newness, and vigor, the 1978-1979 school year proved to be a success.

Blue

(bl$\overline{oo}$) adj. 1. depressed in spirits. 2. dismal 3. unexpectedly 4. rarely and exceptionally.

For many students blue was a color that could be associated with every part of their school lives. While those depressing moments sometimes meant being alone at lunch, some found lunch more exceptional when shared with their friends. Many students were stuck with the blue thoughts of a broken romance, left with nothing to remember but rare feelings toward one another. Students not only felt strongly about their romances, but they also exhibited school spirit and pride towards their teams. The agony of the past year's football record was suddenly swept away as the team experienced the exhiliration of a victorious season.

Even though graduation was a rare moment, we were saddened at the thought of leaving our childhood friends and dreams. As we began the journey into our futures, our thoughts became isolated moments of our innerselves, caught between the future and the past, reserved in our minds as mere memories.

1. Michele Lipes struggles to meet a deadline.
2. Taking a moment to gaze at their fellow students are Lora Sisk and Robert Goff.
3. Scott Pool and Lani Rumbaoa spend a quiet moment alone during their lunch break.
4. Overcome after graduation, Colleen Trigg and Kathy Munion, embrace in farewell.
5. Kathy Munion is surprised to learn that she is a senior Homecoming princess.
6. Susan Watson sits and daydreams.
7. Listening to a lunchtime band are Page Reichstein and Maureen Stieger.
8. Many new students had to wait patiently to register for the Fall semester.
9. Lisa and Denise Buckner look on while spirit week activities take place.

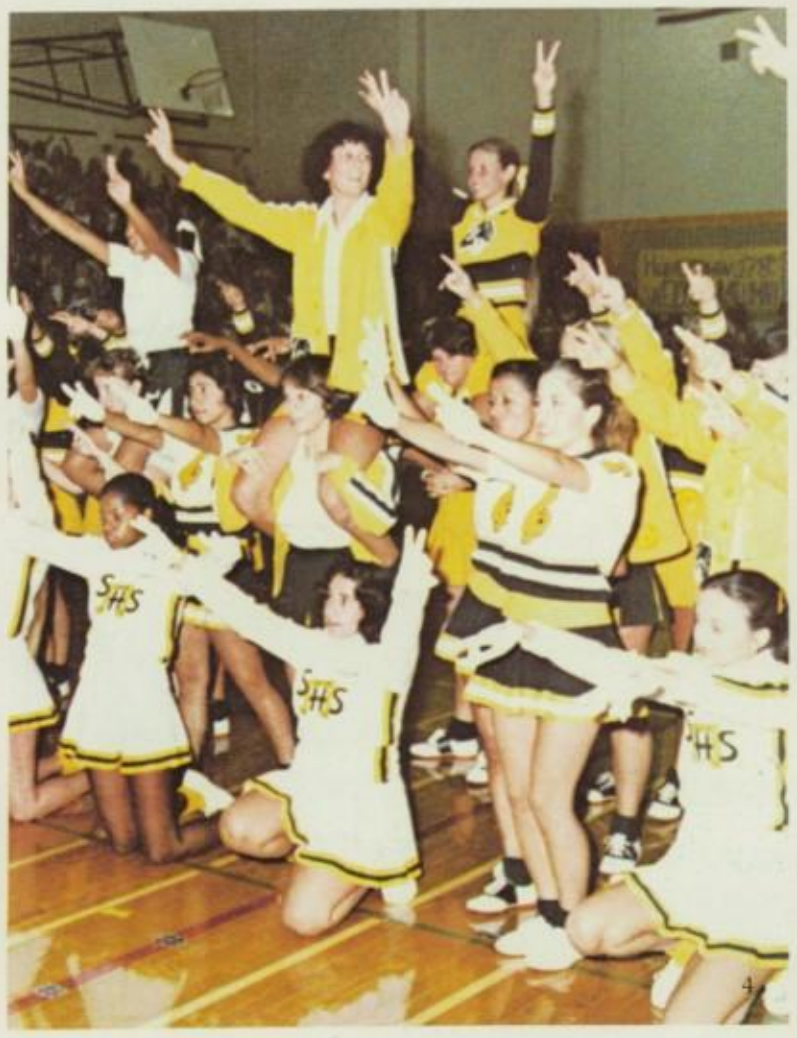
Purple

(pûr plə) n. A blueish red color. 2. Cloth as worn as a symbol of royalty. -adj. 1. Elaborate.

Homecoming was Saddleback's most elaborate festivity. The celebration spanned three pep assemblies, an entire week of spirit and lunchtime activities, and ended with an exciting 10-0 football victory over Troy High School.

During the Homecoming game, the Saddleback Marching Band and Drill Team presented a fantastic half-time production, which concluded with the presentation of the 1978 Homecoming Court. Each member of the court entered the field in one of ten Corvettes and was escorted onto the field by her father. Kathy Munion was named to reign as the 1978 Homecoming Queen.

The Homecoming dance was held on the Saddleback High School grounds. It proved to be a success with Kathy and her court of nine reigning over the occasion.



1. Activities Director, Mr. Richard Mahoney, presides over the Homecoming assembly.
2. As Queen Kathy Munion is crowned by the 1977 Homecoming Queen, Janice Belsito, her father, Mr. Raymond Munion, proudly looks on.

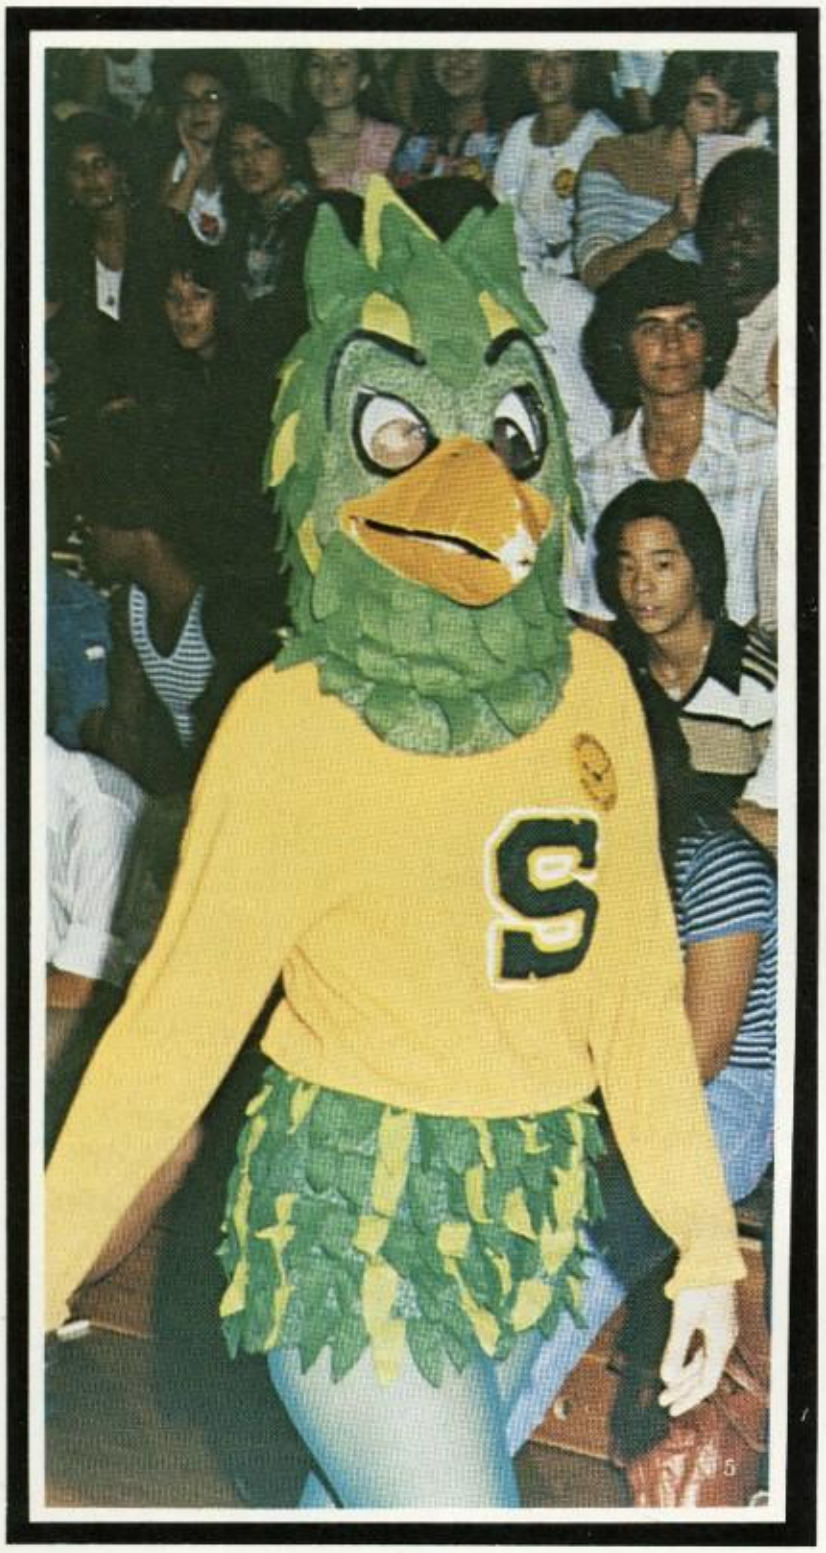
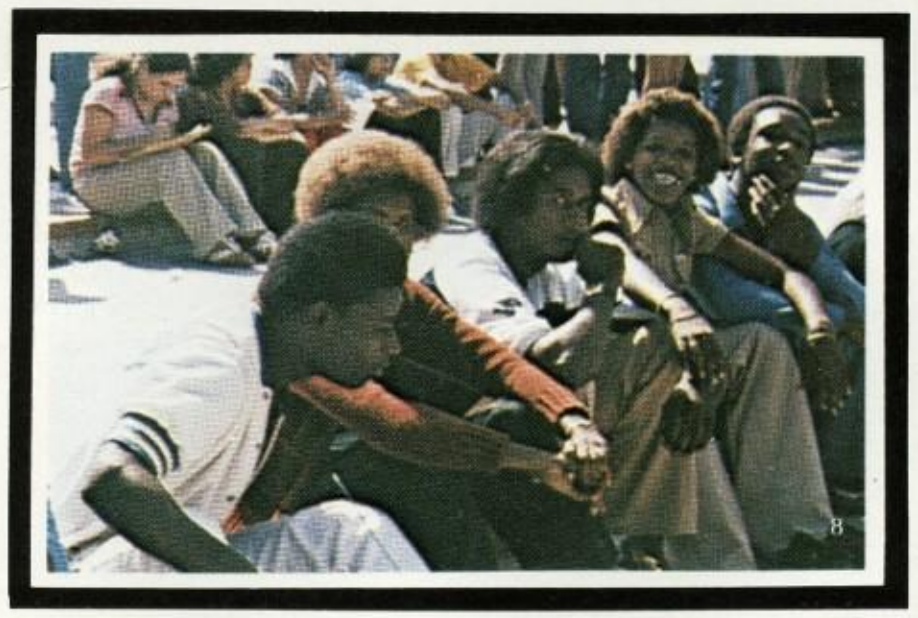
6. Led by Band Director, Mr. Walt Houston, the clarinet section provides harmony during the band's rendition of "Fantasy".
7. Coach Bob Larson congratulates a proud Coach Jerry Witte after upsetting the Anaheim Colonists.
8. Anxiously awaiting one of the lunchtime bands, students take a few moments to discuss the latest happenings.

Black

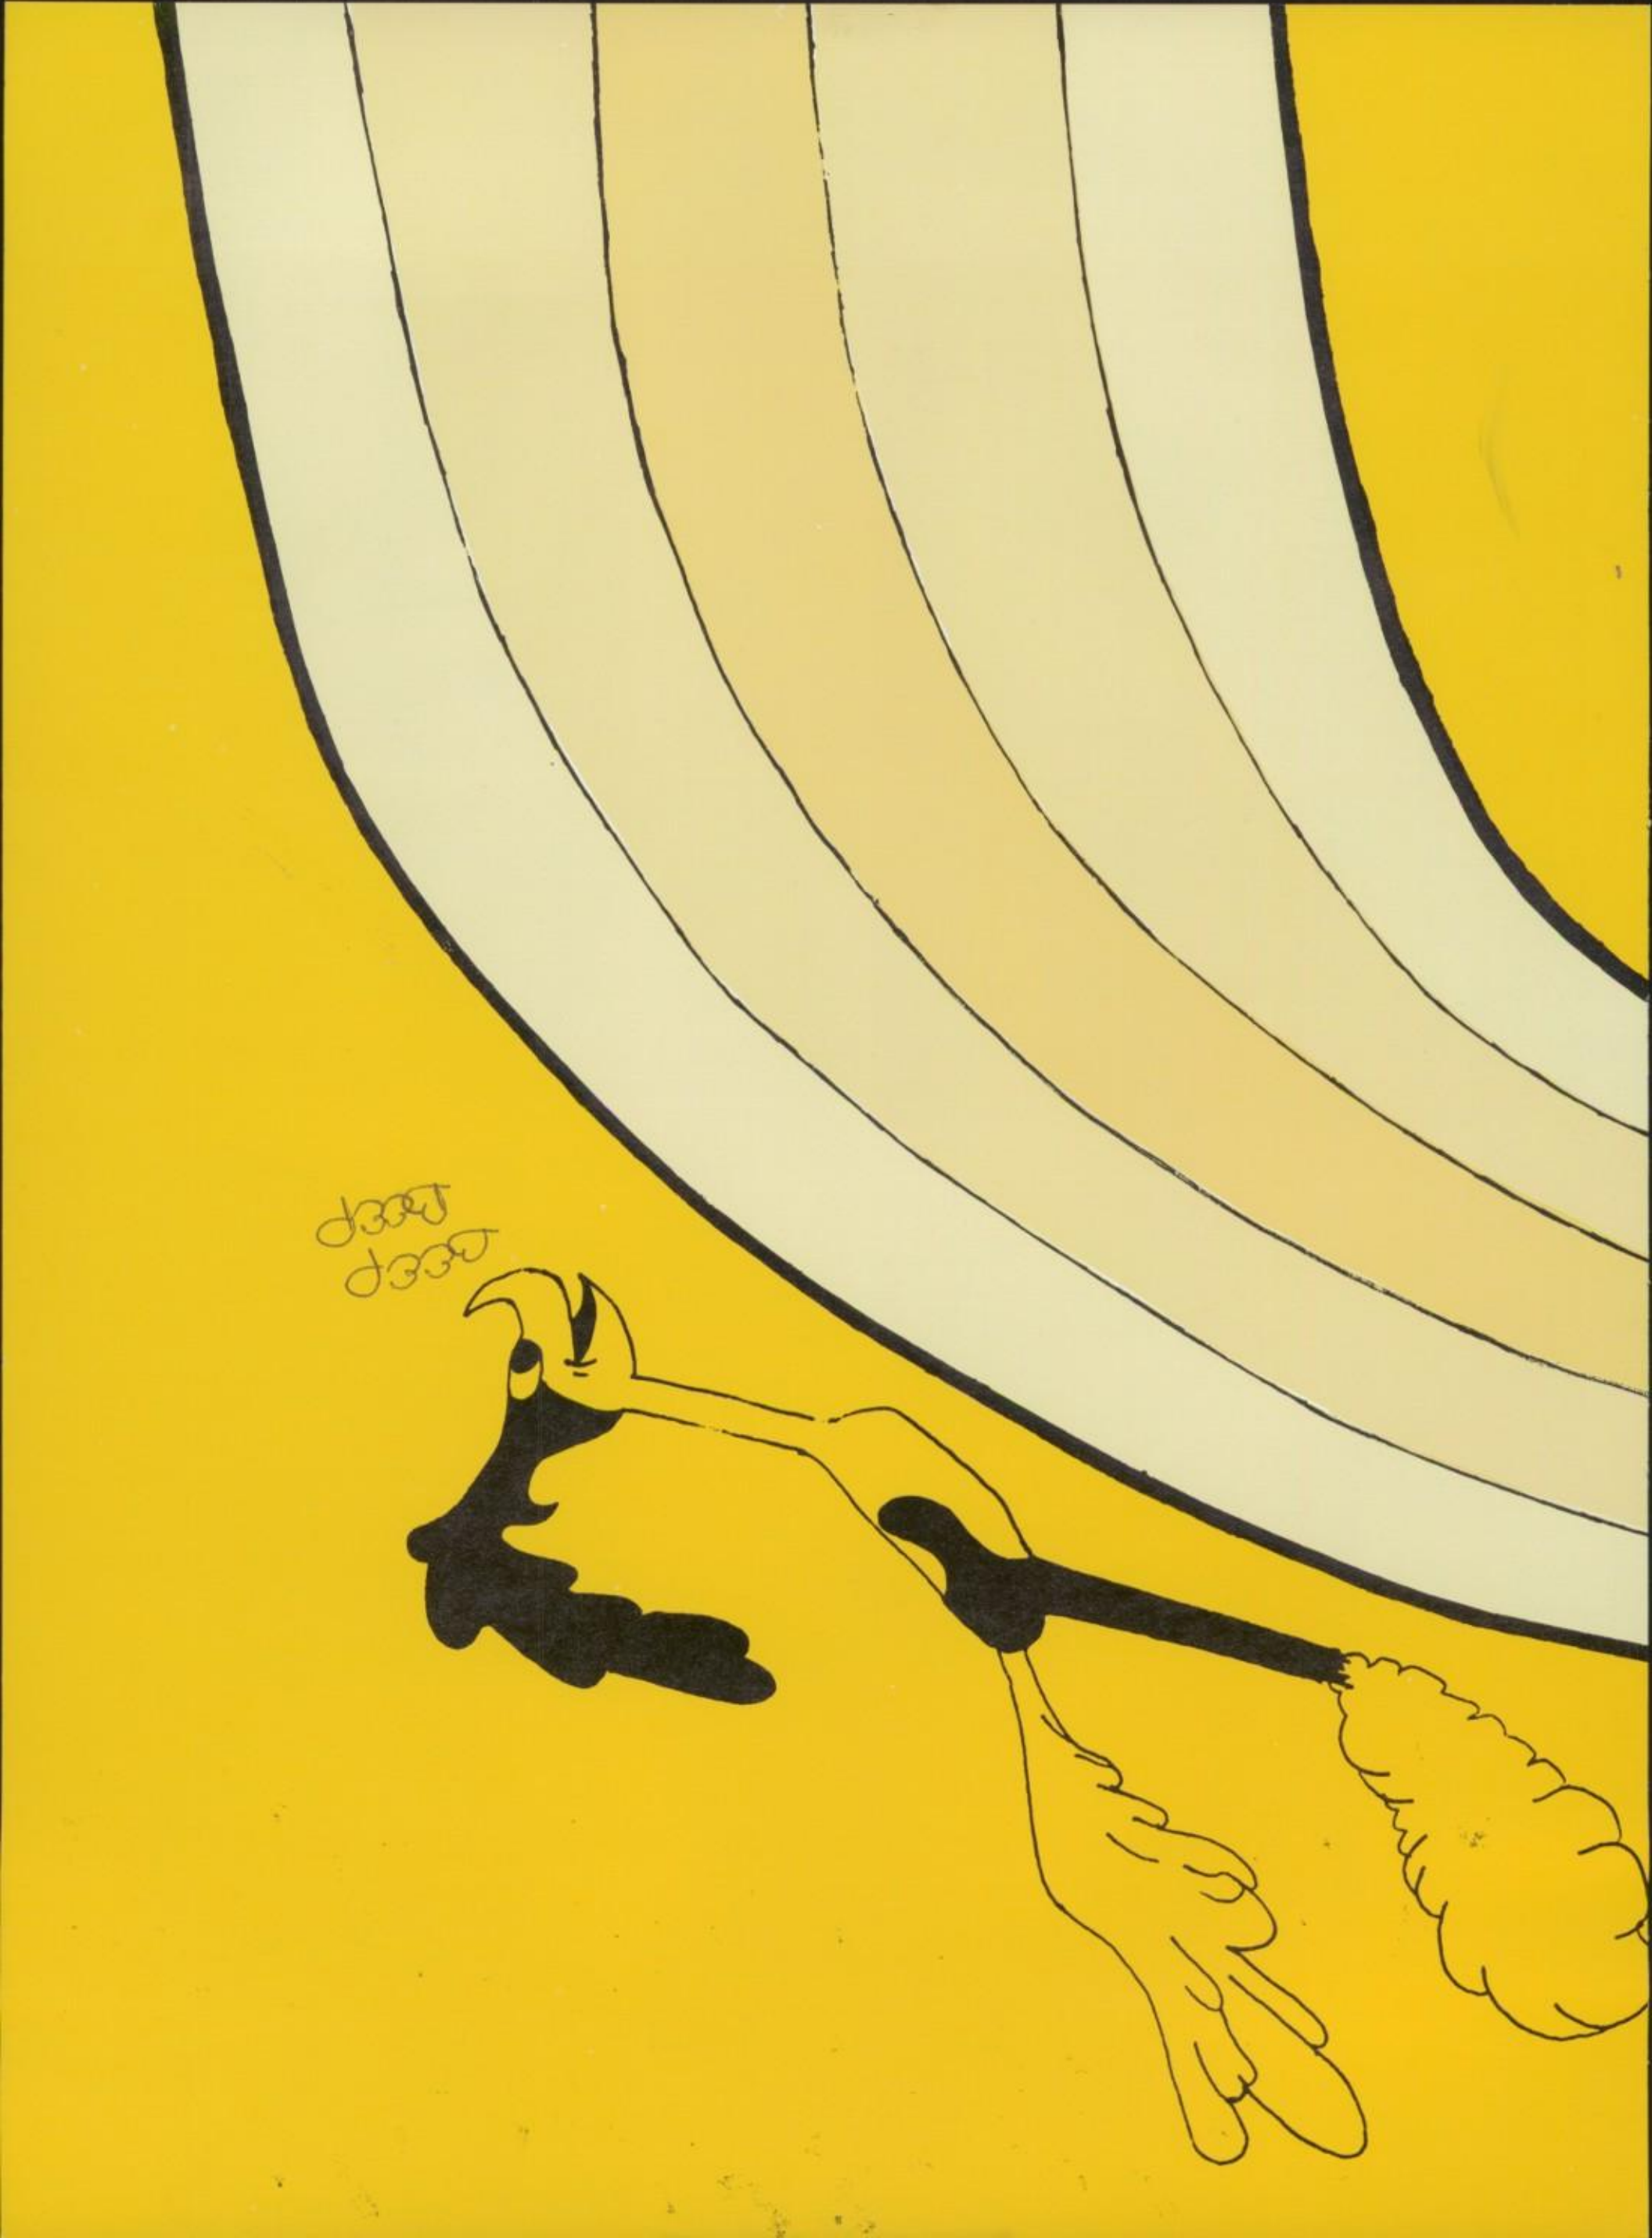
(blăk) adj. 1. Without brightness or color. 2. evil or wicked. 3. gloomy.

Desolation and unhappiness were feelings that we encountered at least once during each school year. Throughout the school day, the color black was always present. The biweekly newspaper, printed in black and white, informed us of school and community events. The black topped school parking lot became an important meeting palce before and after school. Whenever we saw the color black, it continued to remind us of the days of blackboards and biology books, of encils lead and black inked reports, and of the Photography Darkroom and the formation of the Black Student Union. In fact, while the color black involved sadness, it also served as a reminder of moments to remember.





CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS



J.V. Cheer

The 1978-1979 J.V. Cheerleaders had a very active year. Many hours were devoted to a very worthwhile cause. Because of the deletion of summer school, the girls found that summer practices were a must everyday.

The first "real" activity in which the J.V. Cheerleaders took part was the Hibbard's Summer Camp, where they learned new cheers and chants. Although this camp lasted four strenuous days, the J.V. Cheerleaders agreed that it was a worthwhile experience.

Competing was a major part of the cheerleaders' lives. They competed at Arroyo High School, Clovis, the Saddleback Competition, and at a state competition. Many mornings and after school practices were needed to prepare for these competitions.

The J.V. Cheerleaders also cheered for many sport teams. All of the J.V. Cheerleaders' many activities and performances helped to fill 1979 with hours to remember.

Leslie Lawton, head cheerleader, cheers with pride at a basketball game.

The Varsity Cheer consisted of ten girls, who after some discord and confusion, pulled their group into an outstanding squad. They found that practicing was a definite must and that it paid off in the end.

The cheerleaders received second place at both the Saddleback Competition and the Hibbard's Camp Competition. They also earned first place at the Arroyo High School Competition. Each of their awards were well deserved.

The Varsity Cheerleaders gave support to all C.I.F. teams by hostessing a continental breakfast in honor of the four C.I.F. teams. This was one of the many aspects that made cheerleading a very rewarding experience.

Songleaders

The 1979 Songleaders found songleading to be a very rewarding experience. They attended football, basketball, water polo, soccer, cross country, baseball, track, swimming, and wrestling matches. Supporting school athletic teams was a major concern of the songleaders. Decorating the boys' locker room and selling kittens were a few more of the activities that the songleaders engaged in.

The songleaders were a very close-knit group. Morning and afternoon practices really brought the squad together. The songleaders also attended camp, trips, and various competitions together. Through their school activities, the songleaders became a very close squad.

Bewildered, but looking for the rest of her squad, is Sondra Parrot.

Drill Team

Consisting of thirty-four members and three captains, the 1978-1979 Drill Team worked diligently during the summer and throughout the school year to learn routines and the basic skills of marching.

Twelve members, including captains Donna Freeman, Donna Lindquist, and Lydia Romero, attended the Hibbards' California Clinic to learn skills that would be useful throughout the year. The members placed first in the 64 count evaluation and third in the 128 count evaluation. The Drill Team also competed in various parades including the Baldwin Park Parade where they took third place.

It was not an unusual sight to see the Drill Team members practicing out on the track at 7:30 a.m. Early morning rehearsals were a necessity for perfecting their half-times shows which were performed at all home football games.

The traditional Date Dad Night was a highlight for the girls. They spent an evening dining with their fathers and then escorted them to the S.H.S. gym for an evening of basketball action. Although the Drill Team spent most of its time performing, the members found that their endless practices were the major factor for their spirit and positive attitude toward Drill Team.

Poise, Precision & Perfection

Drill Team Advisor, Mrs. Carolyn Aday, makes preparations vital for an excellent appearance.

The Drill Team members worked diligently throughout the first semester in order to purchase new evening uniforms. To aid with the costs, they sold items such as Christmas kittens and stationery.

Drill Team members were active at sporting events and added to the spirit at assemblies. They also helped to create the pride and self-respect that was evident throughout the entire student body.

The Music Makers

The 1978-'79 Marching Band, under the direction of Mr. Walter Houston, worked diligently to produce a band which not only entertained, but also accomplished.

The band was comprised of seventy musicians who formed both the Marching and Concert Bands, and performed from twenty to thirty times a year at various Varsity games, assemblies, and parades. Although the band was not a large one, it had the advantage of having musicians who worked together to produce a quality sound.

Among the competitions attended was the Baldwin Park Parade where the band attained the highest music score during the 1979 marching season with a 94.0. Director Mr. Walter Houston commented that he felt "very proud of the progress that the band members had made, but, of course, they constantly strove for higher levels of perfection."

The band had a very self-satisfying year, as well as providing the school with popular selections of music through its many performances.

The flute section prepares for the first notes of a song.

Working hard, Janiet Lindsey contributes to the overall sound of the band.

Dave Lopez adds a modern beat to the band.

The band begins practice for an upcoming parade at 7:00 a.m.

The saxophone section adds a pleasant tone to the band.

Concert Chorale

The 1978-'79 Concert Chorale consisted of approximately 33 musically talented students. These students entertained in such prestigious places such as South Coast Plaza and I. Magnum. The group also carolled at the School District Office and at various elementary schools. In order to prepare for their performances, the students practiced during and outside of class time. The better performers in the group also attended a Pacific Music Clinic where they were directed by professional singers.

The Concert Chorale students experessed their individuality through song, and thus presented colorful performances of which the entire school was proud.

Concert Chorale members, Cynthia Barrentine and Nancy Cutler, study their music.

Chorus

The 1978-'79 Mixed Chorus consisted of forty students who took their musical responsibilities with much seriousness. These responsibilities entailed class rehearsals as well as performances at school concerts. Although the Mixed Chorus was divided into two class periods, the members were still able to further develop their musical talents and to perform well as one unit. Many of the Mixed Chorus members further pursued their vocal interests by auditioning for a position in the Concert Chorale. Although it was very time consuming, the Mixed Chorus proved to be a very beneficial organization.

Presenting the first place trophy, which was won at the Kiwanis Bowl, to Mr. Edward Krass are Laura Heying and advisor Mr. David Bunch.

The Kiwanis Bowl and Academic Decathlon teams combined in the 1978-1979 school year to form a group of Academic Competitors. The Kiwanis Bowl team consisted of fourteen members who were sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The Academic Decathlon team, however, consisted of ten juniors and seniors.

One of the major differences between the Kiwanis Bowl and Academic Decathlon teams was the manner in which they competed. Kiwanis Bowl members competed as a group, where as, Academic Decathlon members were separated into three different sections. Another difference between the teams was the location of the competitions. Kiwanis Bowl members competed against Santa Ana and Valley High Schools, where for the first time in the history of S.H.S., they captured the city championship and a first place trophy. Decathlon members, on the other hand, had one major competition which was held county-wide.

When the advisor, Mr. David Bunch, was asked what his goals for the team were, he replied that he hoped "to get students interested in academics."

Executive Council

Although many students were aware that Executive Council members were voted into office, what many did not realize were the procedures prior to the elections. A student could run for an office simply by obtaining a petition and receiving twenty-five student signatures. After the petition was signed, the student needed the endorsement of the Assistant Principle of Control and the signature of his or her counselor. During the election, the student prepared a videotaped speech which was viewed by the student body. The elections were then held and the winners were announced.

After the members were chosen, they attended a summer leadership camp for three days. While at the camp leaders from S.H.S. attended workshops along with other school representatives who held similar office. Although the camp was hard work, there was also fun involved. Afternoon sporting activities where schools competed against each other, and a camp talent contest were among the social events. The camp members attended dances and evaluated bands seeking musical employment. S.H.S. Activities Director, Mr. Richard Mahoney, felt that the camp was "definitely helpful to all leaders."

Goals are Exceeded

The selection of council members was just one hue in the multicolored rainbow of the Executive Council. The Council met daily during fourth period to discuss the school's social calendar. Council members had to determine which weeks would be set aside for special events like Spirit and Homecoming week. Another one of their many jobs was to grant sales of any types to clubs who wished to make a profit.

This year, there was one major change in the Executive Council. Rather than simply having the class presidents on the council, all of the class members participated in council meetings. This system seemed to be more suitable, because the class officers had more opportunity to know each other.

When asked if the goals of the Council had been achieved, Mr. Richard Mahoney replied that "they had been exceeded." He also stated that the 1979 Executive Council worked diligently and accomplished a great deal. As a whole, the Executive Council represented the student body and it strived to conduct its business in the interest of the representees.

Drama

The drama classes provided an excellent opportunity for those interested in acting to make their debuts. There were many students who enrolled for the classes. While some students were in drama for their own enjoyment, others felt that someday they might pursue an acting career, and signed up to further develop their abilities.

During the class periods, the students performed skits which helped them to become familiar with the stage. The students also became acquainted with a variety of acting such as mystery, drama, and comedy.

The preparations for the productions were not easy tasks. The try-outs for the 1979 winter play, Ten Little Indians, were held after school and the cast was selected for its talent and for its physical resemblances to the characters. Everyday, the advisor Mrs. Leslie Tuche and the cast met in the forum for practice. The props were mainly constructed by the cast, though some outside help from teachers and students helped tremendously.

Mrs. Tuche commented that the productions were well worth watching and that she felt the student body enjoyed them.

Chaparral Staff

The 1978-79 Yearbook Staff was an elite group which was composed of twenty-four talented juniors and seniors who where chosen for their writing and artistic abilities. The selection process began in April of 1978, as the completed applications for new staff members were analyzed. Upon acceptance, each staff member was instructed in the areas of lay-out design, composition techniques, and photograph arrangement. Armed with those skills, the staff worked diligently under the supervision of Mrs. Denise Tate and the direction of Co-Editors-in-Chief Cecilia Perkins and Laura Bridges to produce an award-winning National Showcase Annual. Photography Editor Cathy Stieger, whose duty was to make certain that all requested pictures were available, also donated time and knowledge to the production of the Chaparral.

Composed of eleven different and unique sections, the Chaparral held and delineated the theme of Hours to Remember not only throughout the entire text of the book, but also with the accentuation of the opening and closing sections. The unique theme conveyed, in actuality, two different and distinct concepts. With its play on words, the theme not only denoted the numerous hours that were devoted to the completion of the book and the hours that made up the days in each student's high school life, but it also personalized each student's memories. Overall, the Chaparral was a dichotomy representing each student's individual activities and school life.

The 1979 Yearbook Staff was a special group of people possessing unique gifts of talent which they contributed to the book. Their efforts caused the annual to become an individual experience . . . . . .

Ours to Remember.

Roadrunner Staff

Each new school year brought new staff members together who deserved special recognition for their accomplishments. Sharing the common goal of seeking and adopting a variety of new methods for the ever improving format of the newspaper, every member contributed to the success of the ROADRUNNER during the 1978-79 year.

Maintaining a tradition of providing the best possible coverage for the school was the motto that the staff adopted. Consideration for student body related activities was a main concern for seeking the attention of such a diversified campus of varied interests and cultures. Throughout the year, these topics found their way onto the pages of each issue in stories and pictures.

Furthering a continued interest, the ROADRUNNER staff released its annual magazine, ARCADE, which also compiled a variety of articles of interest to the students.

As a communication link between the school and the students, the ROADRUNNER's backbone consisted of the writers, photographers, and the advisor.

The ROADRUNNER staff extended its very special appreciation to the advisor, Mrs. Carol Hagg. Obstacles confronting the ROADRUNNER staff were quickly overcome through her enlightened patience.

N.J.R.O.T.C.

Students who were enrolled in the Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps found it to be an exciting challenge. Students attended Santa Ana High School on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday to acquire knowledge about Naval Science from Commander Carl Hill. Tuesdays were spent with Sergeant Frank Brown learning drills such as self-defense, while Thursdays were spent practicing marching skills and other drills. The intent of N.J.R.O.T.C. was to expose students to the elements of military life and self-discipline, without them having to make a commitment.

Student Congress

Student Congress played a very important role in the S.H.S. student body. The organization consisted of approximately eighty students who were selected by their third period classes and who were responsible for representing the classes by attending the meetings on a regular basis. The meetings were held every three weeks and directed by the president of Student Congress, Kelly Kautz. The meetings began with Secretary Jeanne Tolentino reading the minutes of the previous meeting. Jeanne was followed by Mr. Krass or Mr. Mahoney who brought the students up to date with current issues of school happenings.

The main concern of Student Congress was for the members to bring questions, complaints, criticism, and suggestions from the student body to the meetings and to take back information from the Administration. Overall, Student Congress was a means of communication between the Administration and the student body.

C.S.F.

The California Scholarship Federation was an honor society exclusively for Saddleback's finest scholastic achievers.

The purpose of C.S.F. was to honor the outstanding intellectual student, thus setting goals for the remainder of the student body.

Membership in the society was earned by acquiring 10 points in academic subjects. To determine one's eligibility, the grades on the semester report card were translated by transforming "A's" into three points and "B's" into one point. An "F" or "U" automatically debarred membership.

Under the discretion of advisors Mr. Gilbert Shaw and Mrs. Lillian Baron, the California Scholarship Federation planned and executed their annual field trip. In 1979, Catalina Island was selected as the destination.

Although C.S.F. was not a service organization, it held a candy sale as a fund raising activity. The money that was raised was used for the annual awarding of a $50 to $100 scholarship to a deserving senior student.

With the leadership of President Barbara Limbach, Vice President Bill Way, Treasurer Janiet Lindsey, and Secretary Jon Tuin, C.S.F. experienced a successful and productive year.

Contemporary Dance

The 1978-1979 Contemporary Dance Club completed another successful year with its activities. Ms. Blanchard, the club advisor, commented that "again this year, there was a big turn out for the Gong Show". The musical fantasy, Cinderfella, was also a success. The group was also responsible for promoting Black History Week.

The second annual Gong Show was held on November 20, 1978. A $100 cash prize was awarded to the winners, The Dynamite Kids.

The enthusiastic dancers met in the dance room every day after school to discuss and to practice their new moves. Sometimes they even sacrificed their lunch periods in order to practice.

Cinderfella had a cast of thirty-five members and starred Albert Pennywell as Cinderfella, Derek Jackson, Al O'Neal, and Keith Gore as the step-brothers, and Leticia Miller as the fairy God-mother.

President Christy Age, Vice-President Leticia Miller, Secretary-Treasurer Yvette Stanford, Publicity Chairperson Melody Powell, and Social Chairperson Rachell Newson helped to make the club a success.

Although the club's ultimate goal was to train future dancers, fine performers also joined the club in order to keep up their dancing skills.

Key Club

The 1978-1979 Key Club was a very unique club. Although it did not have a campus advisor, Mr. Jim Lyons, a Kiwanis representative, met with the members every Monday evening to discuss club activities. Under the guidance of President Ken Elliott, Vice-President Vince Bustillos, and Secretary-Treasurer Paul Caldera, the club worked with the March of Dimes and the South Coast Kiwanis Club to promote their projects.

The Key Club's ultimate goal was to raise enough money to go to the annual convention in Washington D.C. Fund raising activities, such as selling suckers and holding a burger bash, included attaining more student interests, holding more activities, and most of all, aquiring an advisor.

Work wasn't the only thing on the Key Club members' minds. During the winter season, they made several field trips to the mountains. An NBC Studios Tour was another exciting adventure.

Even though the club members were unable to meet during campus hours, they were able to make the club even better than the year before.

The year ended with the election of the new club officers, and the 78-79 Key Club President Ken Elliott commented that he hoped each year would bring more members and more acknowledgment from the community.

Adding Color

One Senior girl and boy were named Young Lady and Young Man of the Month and represented SHS at community functions. The students selected were recognized for their school involvement and for their willingness to represent SHS.

These students were acknowledged by school Principal, Mr. Edward Krass and by Activities Director, Mr. Richard Mahoney. The young men were presented at a luncheon hosted by the Rotary Club while the young women were presented at the Orange County Chapter of the Soroptomist Club. Being honored by the school and by the community added another hue in the senior class rainbow.

Girls' League

Girls' League was one of the largest and most active clubs on campus. Every girl attending Saddleback was a member of this association.

In order to raise funds, many activities were planned, including candy cane, sucker, and Valentine-o-Gram sales. Girls' League also sponsored a Thanksgiving Food Drive. All funds raised during these activities went toward the food distributed to families in the community on Thanksgiving, the purchase of Christmas trees for needy families, and the college scholarship awarded to a deserving senior girl.

The officers worked well together to make the 1978-1979 year worthwhile. The officers were President Jose Carrillo, Vice-President Colleen Trigg, Secretary Lori Arpaia, and Treasurer Krista Kiger.

According to one of the advisors, Mrs. Marilyn Rowe, Girls' League's main goal was to "service the school and community within the bonds of friendly cooperation of the girls in the club."

Los Latinos

The Los Latinos Club was very active as viewed through the eyes of Club President Sara Carrillo. Well-attended meetings, advised by Mr. Robert Ainley, were held every Tuesday morning. During homecoming week, Los Latinos sponsored senior princess Maria Gallardo and four female members from each class. Throughout its busy year, the club held candy sales, car washes, and dances. One of the most memorable dances of the year was its annual disco dance held in November. Mainly composed of Spanish-speaking students, all club members were well-aware of the importance of organization in the club. Each person contributed new ideas and worked hard to achieve closeness among each other.

Having fun together was an aspect of the Los Latinos Club. The members spent days at Knott's Berry Farm and Magic Mountain and also celebrated Cinco de Mayo. Each officer hoped that Los Latinos would keep up the good work in the years to come and that someday it would be the biggest club on campus.

AFS

"To promote a wider understanding of the AFS program and to spread the spirit of AFS", was the goal of the 1978-1979 American Field Service. The club's increased membership showed that the AFS goal was being accomplished. Throughout the year, the club sold mistletoe and held a "Mile of Pennies" drive. The money earned from these activities went to the adult chapter of AFS to help finance the program of bringing foreign exchange students, like Martina Joblanka and Angelina Adigler, to the U.S.A. AFS meetings were held at school in the evenings or at various club members' homes.

Motocross

The goal of the 1978-1979 Motocross club, according to club advisor, Mr. Jerry White, was to keep the members' together and to earn a trophy. In order to earn a trophy, the members participated in competitions at the Corona Raceway in September and in April.

The Motocross Club meetings were held twice a month in room 155 at which time they collected dues. Along with the dues, the club held a used countershaft sprocket sale and the money earned went toward entry fees, replenishing deficits, and purchasing jessies.

The Ski Club's main goal was to "expose students to the enjoyment of skiing", commented advisor Mr. Dave Rhone.

During weekly meetings, ski trips were organized for various resorts including Mammoth and Brianhead. Demonstrations were also given in order to acquaint the beginning skiers with the equipment involved in this sport.

Both the weekly meetings and the field trips served to unify the group.

Science Club

The Science Club was a new club to the Saddleback campus. The club's main goal was to prepare an on campus plot of ground for an outdoor laboratory. The lab, designed and landscaped by junior Gwen Carney, was created for the study of plants and animals.

The Science Club officers, President David Cook, Secretary Heather McIntire, and Commissioner of Publicity Debbie Gilbody, were happy to make the club active.

Pep Club

The Pep Club promoted Saddleback's spirit. In order to raise money for the annual "End-of-the-Year Dance", the club sold spirit ribbons and candy.

The officers of Pep Club were President Kim Daves, Vice-President Robert Pommier, and Secretary Debbie Arredondo. Each officer tried to accomplish the goals of promoting school spirit and raising the funds necessary for the annual dance.

The club started a new program during the 1979 school season. A certificate was presented to the most spirited player on each varsity team. The club strove to promote school spirit throughout the year.

German Club

A new club on campus, the German club, provided the opportunity for students to enrich their knowledge of the German cultures.

Under the direction of Mrs. Jane Fowler, the club's goals were to enjoy cultural experiences including field trips in order to make the club an enjoyable experience for all.

Club members gathered every Thursday afternoon to discuss activities. Candy sales and the sponsoring of a banana eating contest were a few of the activities.

The German club was a must for all those interested in meeting new friends and learning about another country.

French Club

The main objective of the French club was to provide the students with a better understanding of French culture. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Romeo, the French club's main goal was to raise adequate funds in order to provide a scholarship for one student to spend a summer in France.

The club sponsored a candy and shirt sale to raise the necessary money.

Among other activities was a field trip to view Folkloric Dances performed by "Les Sontileyes" and attendance at a pantomime performance by Marcel Marceau. Eating was another of the French club's pastimes. Dining at extravagant French restaurants was enjoyed by all. The 1978-1979 school year proved to be a success for the entire French club.

Listening to the discussion about the upcoming field trip is Snolyn White and Candace Hazel.

During an important meeting, club members, Teresa Levanant and Mary Lou Caffillo, discuss their trip to France.

Mecha Club

The main objective of the Mecha Club was to get the Chicanos more involved with school activities and to help them become more aware of the importance of their education. The club was very active during the 1979 school year. It sponsored four fund-raising activities, the most successful of which was the Halloween Dance. With the profits earned from the dance, the club planned a field trip to Magic Mountain and proposed to purchase sweatshirts.

The first semester club officers were President Roach Rodriguez, Vice-President Carolyn Jimenez and Vety Moriel, Secretary Susie Cantu, Treasurer Arce Perez and Sergeant of Arms Kiki Busane and John Namsyl. The second semester officers were President Kiki Busane, Vice-President Vety Moriel, Secretary Arlene Lujan, Treasurer Julie Rodriguez and Sergeant of Arms Gloria Hernandez and Roach Rodriguez. With the contributions of these officers, Mecha had a very successful year.

Chess Club

The 1979 Chess Club, as in past years, was advised by Mr. Roe. He was aided by club officers Rod Bayron, President, Mai Nguyen, Treasurer, and Mike Bayron, Secretary. Club meetings were held every Wednesday after school in room 59. The purpose of the club was to teach chess to those who wanted to learn the game, and to give additional experience to those who already had knowledge of the game.

The club participated in three tournaments where the Saddleback players won first place in their divisions. The club also sponsored the Dunkin' Donuts coupon sale and an Almond Rocha candy sale. With the money earned from these fund-raisers, the club planned to purchase new boards for the members as well as new chess sets and instruction books.

Jr. N.A.D.

The Junior National Association of the Deaf's main goal for the 1979 year was to become an established part of Saddleback High. This was only the club's second year at S.H.S. It sponsored a very successful poster sale and the money earned was used to finance field trips and a workshop for the deaf in Riverside.

The club's meetings were held every Tuesday during lunch in Room 159C. The officers were President Don Christy, Vice-President Lydia Latham, and Treasurer Javier Hernandez. Although Don and Javier were graduated with the class of '79, they hoped to leave the club stronger than ever. Vice-President Lydia hoped to continue to serve the club with her leadership qualities in order to provide the same type of direction that was shown during the 1979 year.

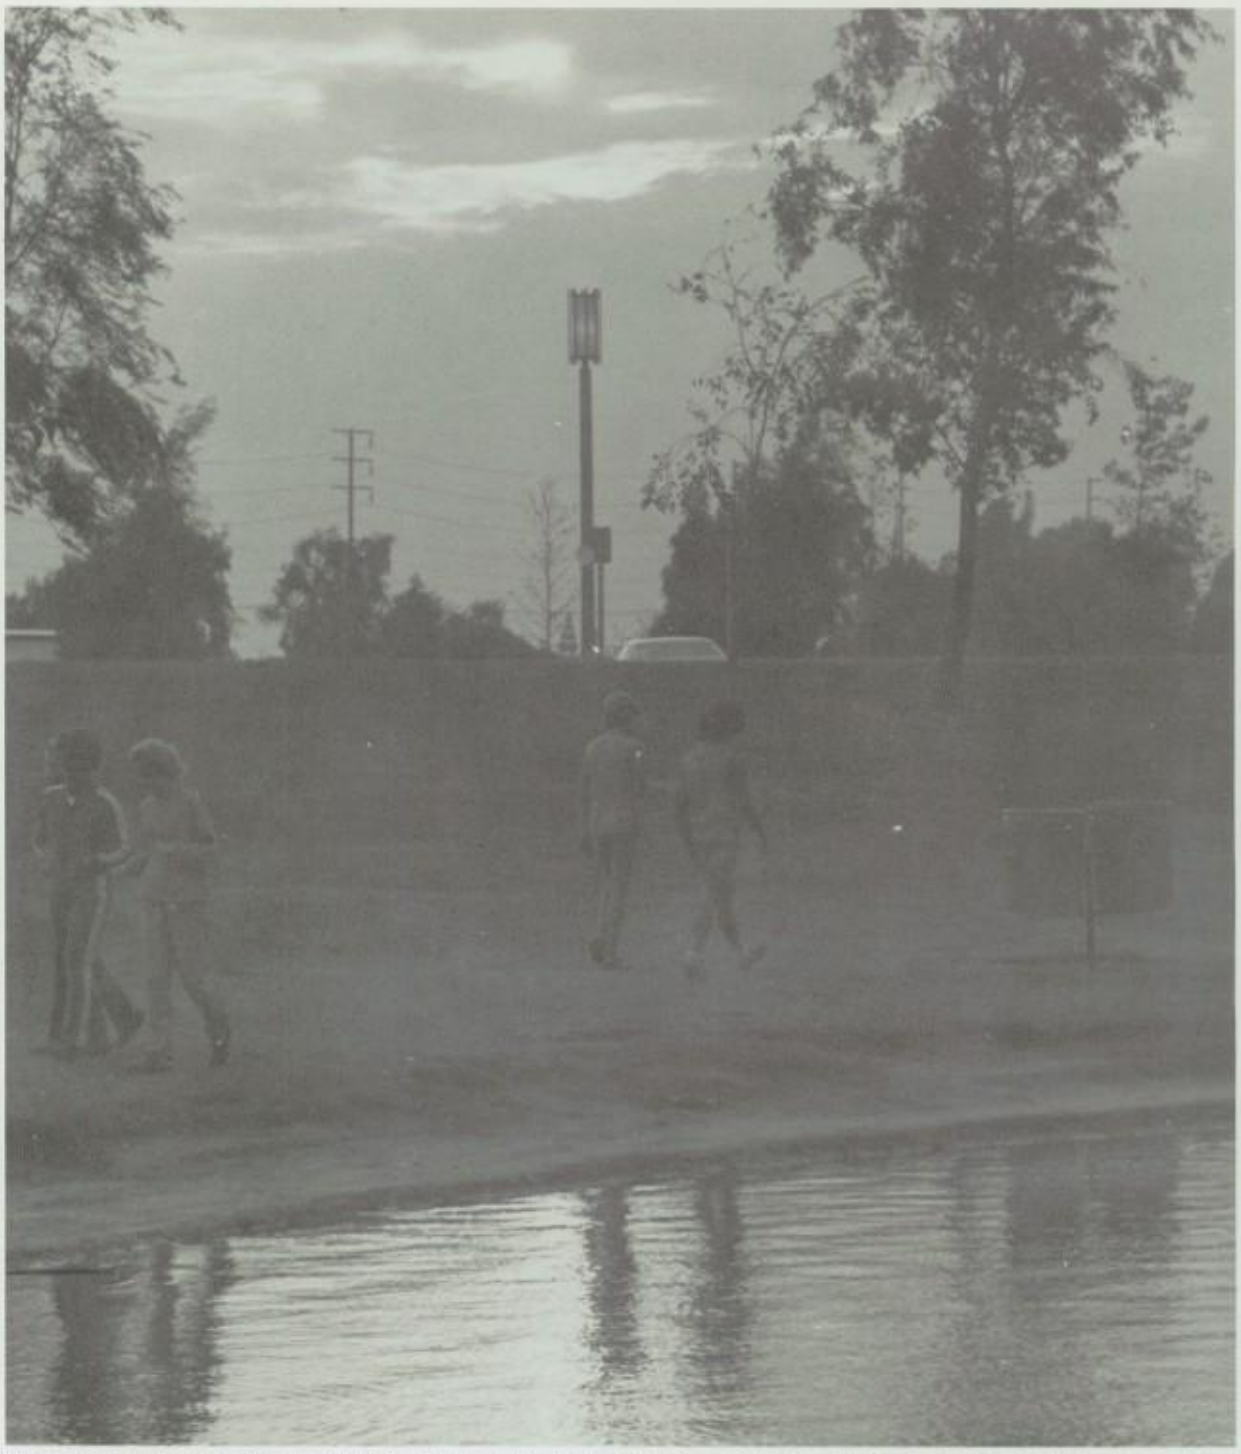
Harriers Capture a Successful Season

The Varsity Cross Country Team held vigorous work outs and was seen practicing on the SHS track or on the streets on any given afternoon. Though few people realized it, the runners really enjoyed the hours of self-conditioning. Members even worked out on their own time, whether it was on the weekend, at the beach, in the mountains, or on the hometown streets.

The runners did not have all this excess energy because the school work outs were too easy. Coach Keith Johannes directed the daily training sessions of six to sixteen miles daily. He placed an emphasis on each team member's weaknesses and accented the importance of individual improvement. This was carried out on a daily basis, rain or shine.

The team was guided by captains Bill Way and Lawrence Damore. They agreed that the cross country team was a real competitive and motivated group, although more underclassmen participation was needed.

The outstanding runner on the team was Carl Stewart who compiled near record times of 16:41 and 16:44, on the SHS course. Other valuable runners were seniors Jim O'Campo and Victor Ramirez, juniors Bob Crockett, Charles Crowe and Gustavo Garcia, and sophomore Greg Ramirez. SHS's Varsity Cross Country Team proved to be a young team with potential and power.



The scene at league finals at Mile Square Park shows the excitement, teamwork and loneliness that sometimes accompanies long-distance running.

Soph-Frosh Adds Strength to J.V.

Spirit was a feeling shared by everyone on the Soph-Frosh Cross Country Team which was a tightly knit group that ran aggressively in competition. As newcomers, most of them were unsure of their abilities, but they gained confidence as time progressed.

Two of the more outstanding runners were sophomore Ed Kuskie and freshman Mike Rubio. Both ran well in the early part of the season at both the Dana Hills and the Buena Park Invitationals. Unfortunately, events took place in the mid-season that halted their progress. Ed was put out by the flu and Mike was sidelined by a broken leg.

All the burden then shifted to Joel Hernendez, Jeff Meyer, Tony Ochoa, and Jeff Sayre. They performed well but the team was not as devastating as before. They finished their season with a respectable win and loss record and placed 3rd in league. Coach Keith Johannes and Mike Villa both agreed that "all things looked promising for the young group."

Saddleback Outdistances Opponents to C.I.F.

The Girls' Cross Country Team has always been a championship team. Since the girls' teams were recognized by CIF, Saddleback has twice represented the league in CIF competition. Even though they were newcomers to the eight team Freeway League this year, the team completed a 6 win, 1 loss season.

The ironic thing about their season, though, was that two new runners, senior Laura Heying and sophomore Sonia Gomez, held the top positions on the team. They each compiled personal best times of 12:07 and 12:15, respectively, in the two mile race. They also placed in top positions in the CIF competition at Mount San Antonio College.

Most of the time, the girls worked on the same drills as did the boys Cross Country Team. The usual schedule included stretching, warm-ups, sprints on the track, and long distance runs. The purpose of the training was to lift each person's level of cardiovascular fitness and to add speed to their legs. It was proven effective in the many meets held this year as the runners placed in the top positions. This team has been described as one full of vigor and spirit by coaches Mrs. Ardith Chamness and Ms. Yvonne Baca; one can be sure it has started a CIF tradition that will be long continued.

Of the leading runners on the team are Wendy Carney, Sonia Gomez, and Soledad Tafolla.

"4th and 1"

The Varsity team motto, "4th and 1", indicated that exceptional effort had been exerted in a game. The team's 4th and 1 effort caused it to gain the second best record in the school's history. A record of 7-3, as well as a league record of 6-1, was the best since 1970 when a record of 9-2 was posted; however, the 1978 squad won the most league games in the history of the school which put the team in CIF competition.

"Big plays" played an important role in the Roadrunner season. Among the notable defensive plays were Randy Navarrette's 26 yard fumble recovery for a touchdown in the game against Irvine. A 57 yard touchdown against Anaheim on a Jon Tuin interception was yet another memoriable event. Outstanding offensive plays included Bruce Lane's 72 yard touchdown against Savanna and both of Rudy Ruelas draw plays which resulted in touchdowns. Specialty teams also contributed to the excitement. One of these exciting moments came during the Magnolia game when Al Pennywell returned a 53 yard punt. Another specialty team thriller came on Jon Tuin's 97 yard kick-off return for a Saddleback touchdown.

The 1978 Football Team experienced a tremendous success. There were many factors contributing to the fine season, but talent, experience, attitude, and coaching were the most obvious.

Although it was probably not the most talented Saddleback team, there were several players with excellent ability. Possibly the most talented player was tight end Bruce Lane. Bruce was voted the Anaheim Bulletin Freeway League lineman of the year.

Experience was also a major reason for the team's success. A majority of the veterans were the lineman, including John Howard, Paul Caldera, Vince Bustillos, and Greg Franklin. Three year lettermen Al Pennywell and Jon Tuin also boosted the teams experience.

Attitude was another factor contributing to the outstanding season record. Whatever talent team members may have lacked, they made up for it in their attitude. Coach Witte's name for the 1978 team was the Irate 38. The team started the Mission Viejo game with the identical number. The player that probably most typlified the Roadrunners' attitude was fullback Rudy Ruelus. He was never without a struggle. Much like Rudy, the Varsity squad never gave up.

Coaching was the number one reason for the impressive 7-3 record. Each coach devoted numerous hours preparing for the week's game. For example, the coaches would often stay at school until as late as one o'clock in the morning breaking down film. Our coaches developed one of the best coaching staffs in Orange County. Excellent football knowledge as well as a special ability to work with each team member were reasons why the coaches were so good. Head football coach Jerry Witte not only taught each player how to become better athletes, but also how to become better human beings.

All the aforementioned factors combined to allow the 1978 Varsity Team to fulfill their highest dreams. On Friday, November 24, 1978 the Roadrunners played Villa Park High School in the first round of CIF competition. Even though Saddleback was not victorious the spirit and pride of the year had already been set. Saddleback had proved itself.

Pride

Attitude

The Sophomores performed one of the biggest turn arounds ever in Saddleback's history. The same team as Freshmen suffered a 1-8 season only to bounce back and to become a league champion contender. One reason for this turn around was the coaches Jeff Jacquot, Charles Butler, and Joe Rison. Another contribution was the team's attitude. Each member decided that he wanted to win and could win. The Sophomores called it PRIDE.

Spirit

The members of the Sophomore Football Team were possibly the most spirited group of students in the school. They displayed their enthusiasm both on and off the field. At the Pep Assemblies, the Sophomore Class walked away with the Spirit Stick on several occasions due to the excitement generated by the players. On the field, they showed that they could practice what they preached completing the season with a 7-2-1 record, and finishing second only to Anahiem in a controversial 7-6 loss.

Stats

Statistically, Charles Parham, Steve Reid, Carlos Estrada, and Craig Volmer were among the Sophomore standouts. Parham carried the ball 192 times for 940 yards and 8 touchdowns with a 50 yard rushing average. While Reid only carried the ball 48 times for only 357 yards and for 4 touchdowns, he did manage to gain an average of 7.4 yards per carry. Carlos Estrada, the Sophomore quarterback, completed 64 passes on 103 attempts for 747 yards and 3 touchdowns. He averaged 12 yards a pass and completed 62% of his passes. Craig Volmer, the leading receiver caught 36 passes for a total of 413 yards and 4 touchdowns with a 11.5 yard average per catch.

Awards

Awarded trophies at the football Awards Dinner were: Best Lineman- Walter Wood; Offensive Player of the Year- Charles Parham; Defensive Player of the Year- Dan Clark; Most Improved- Steve Reid; Coaches Award- Rick Garza; Most Valuable Player- Carlos Estrada

Freshmen Find Football a Tough Sport

The Freshmen played in a league which consisted of nearby schools containing a freshmen class. Obviously, the schools being presented the Freshmen with many rivals. They even had a chance to compete with cross town rivals Santa Ana and Santa Ana Valley. Although they did not fare well in league play, the Freshmen team included some outstanding individuals. Players that stood out were Phil Moncrete and John Woods. Coaches Paul Carnegie, Jeff Robbins, and Jose Sanchez were also outstanding individuals.

At the Football Awards Dinner several players were honored. Among those honored were Richard Osborn, Tim Caputo, John Woods, and Phil Moncrete.

Be Aggressive

Saddleback's 1978-'79 Varsity Tennis Team was coached by Mr. Mike Conover, assisted by tri-captains Michele Lipes, Liz Rios and Debbie Vasquez. The captain's enthusiasm and the team member's determination combined to make the season record a victorious 16-4, third only to Troy and Sunny Hills. Coach Conover commented that with a little more practice, the SHS team could defeat both Sunny Hills and Troy.

The pre-season proved to be a very exciting part of the year because the matches played were won by such wide margins. Due to the cancellation of summer school, the team came out on the courts without any practice. "The team did better than I thought they would," remarked Mr. Conover. "They surprised me and the new league."

Last year six seniors were lost, making room for incoming players. The carefully chosen team included two freshmen players, Jamie Konon and Debbie Stombeck. Debbie advanced very quickly to the #3 singles position and Jamie to the #3 doubles position. Sophomore tennis members included Gina Campelone, Karyn Dillion, Krista Kiger and La Wanda Williams, along with upperclassmen Marlene Konon, Michele Lipes, Veronica Middleton, Jean Martinez, Minnette Malek, Liz Rios and Debbie Vasquez. Even though there weren't any seniors on the team, it wasn't considered a loss. The team did very well without them. Mr. Conover stated, "The SHS team played as well as or even better than last year."

After an exciting season, the girls went on to League Finals. Liz Rios, Debbie Strombeck and Debbie Vasquez made the All-Freeway League Singles Team. Krista Kiger and Michele Lipes made the All-Freeway League Doubles Team. These achievements provided inspiration for the players. Although the chances of having a winning season were very slim, Saddleback was victorious. The Varsity players worked hard to reaching CIF. It had been a goal that was set in the beginning of the year. The girls played their first CIF match against Cerritos. Unfortunately, the team lost in the first round.

The SHS tennis girls felt that the season was very fulfilling. They learned from their experiences and hoped that the coming year would be even more successful.

Different Strokes for Different Folks

The 1978-'79 Junior Varsity Tennis Team consisted of freshmen and sophomores, and the team members never ceased in their competitive spirit. Even though the team lacked in experience, the girls improved with every match and finished with an 11-9 record. Each girl's will to learn and to become a better player was a great benefit.

Between the hours of 1:40 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. the girls were seen on the courts completing their exercises, which included sit-ups, sprints, push-ups, and a perimeter around the school. They practiced just as hard as the Varsity Squad, hoping that someday they, too, would go to CIF.

Veronica Hauben, a freshman, was awarded a trophy for the Most Valuable Player. Other members who gave their full efforts were Aida Rodriquez, 2nd singles, and Alma Sandavol, 3rd singles. Celia Ramirez and Maria Hinojosa worked well together as 1st doubles, Susan Watson and Jeanne Kane as 2nd doubles and Wendee Arauz and Tina Callisto as 3rd doubles. With each game, the players were able to hit better shots and to become more aggressive.

The J. V. Team was spirited, and their high spirit brought the team closer together. Their will to win was also a factor which contributed to their success. A secondary motivation was the fact that they were all looking forward to pizza after a match!

"High Spirit and Good Teamwork Makes Our Team Great!"

C. Trigg

"This has been the most spirited team I have seen," remarked Coach Mary Meredith about the Varsity Volleyball Team. There had always been spirit at the games, but never any organized cheering. Two of the main reasons for the team's success were the team's togetherness and team spirit. The seniors were a big help. Their experience settled the team and added discipline and control when it was needed.

"The 1978 Varisty team was by far the best team I've ever coached," commented Coach Meredith. Her goal for the team was to win first place in the league. The skills of the two sophomore players, Anna Galindo and Herrisa Pennywell contributed a great deal to the team. The most outstanding players on the team were, Diane Caldera, Cindy Clinkenbeard, Kathi Hagan, Shirly Johnson, and Theresa Warne.

Ms. Meredith felt that the change to the Freeway League was very beneficial, despite the distance involved in travel. She believed that it was referred to as the Freeway League because you were always on the freeway. Though they traveled long distances, the team still upheld their winning spirit and team work.

Closeness Combined with Skill

The Junior Varsity Volleyball Team was supervised by Ms. Cathy Frank, a new coach to Saddleback. Ms. Frank found enjoyment in her coaching position and commented that the student body and faculty of Saddleback were great. She was not only pleased with the team's positive attitude toward her and student trainer Paul Canham, but also with the team's strong school spirit. Ms. Frank's goal for the team was to "grow together, because winning was secondary."

The Junior Varsity Volleyball Team was a very close group of girls possessing excellent skills. These skills were the result of daily practice sessions in the gym from 1:40-4:30p.m. Recognized among the top four starters were Debbie Carr, Tracey Clinkenbeard, Leslie Loseke, and Mary Schwalm. Each was considered definite "Varsity material." The girls all agreed that Sunny Hills was their toughest competition. "The Roadrunner team played aggressively as well as offensively, unlike most Junior Varsity teams who concentrated only on defense," remarked Coach Frank. These tactics proved to be very successful as shown through their victorious season.

Tankmen in Action

The 1978-'79 Varsity Water Polo Team was a competitive force in the Freeway League. Returning lettermen Russ Binggeli, Ted Elliott, and Brian Neal led the team to victory. What gaps remained were filled by experienced juniors and sophomores. In addition, two new senior players, Dan Ducey and Kevin Sayre were added. Despite the few returning members, the players worked very well together. When asked which player scored the most points, Mr. Contino replied that "Water Polo was a team sport, and that whoever scored the most points was not an important factor."

Named as the most valuable team player was Ted Elliott. As a senior with polo experience, Ted added the necessary ingredient which made the players become a team. As noted by Mr. Contino, "Ted's head-up attitude and will to win were a great inspiration to the team."

Also, as another outstanding player, Don Holdeman competed well despite his hearing disability. Due to his quick thinking and reactions, Don was a very aggressive player. The players communicated with him as best as they could with signs.

The players acquired their skills during the long, hard practices, which were held before school from 6:30-7:30 a.m. After school, they practiced from 1:45-4:30 p.m.

The spirited practices and exciting games caused the 1978 water polo season to be a success.

By coaching the 1978 Soph-Frosh Water Polo team, Ken Watson enjoyed his first year at Saddleback and considered coaching to be a great challenge. The team enthusiastically learned new skills from their young coach.

The addition of female players on the team proved to be quite beneficial. Coach Watson remarked that "the girls seemed to be able to adapt to the water better than the guys." The freshmen also added a great deal of skill to the team. The two freshmen starters were Chris Rocha and Ron Binggile. Ron was also named the most valuable player on the team.

The team practiced three and one half hours every school day; one and one half hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon. The practices enabled the team members to build the stamina required of good water polo players.

Utilizing Brilliant Tactics

Varsity Basketball Coach, Pat Quinn, remembered that the excellent results of the 1978-1979 season were due to the brilliant tactics that the team utilized. He felt that the use of a fast, good defense and full-court pressure applied to the opposing teams helped to make the season a success.

To achieve such results, the team diligently practiced on offensive and defensive plays. They held shooting and passing drills, and discussed game strategies. The players felt that the practice was a necessity in perfecting individual skills and that it helped the players to work well together as a team.

The team members were led through the season by two 1978 lettermen, Co-captains Remy Black and Craig Legacy. They were called upon for advice and in cases of minor crises. Other veterans included Armond Black, Jess Zarate, and Tim Zierer. Aside from the experienced Varsity players, Coach Quinn felt that newcomers Ricky Brooks and Stan Gant seemed very promising.

Together, the Varsity Basketball team members proved that newcomers and returning players, under the guidance of a perceptive coach, could work well together to achieve their goals.

Practicing six days a week helped to prepare the J V Basketball team for the league games. Coach McCourt felt that the lack of attendance at practices kept the team from playing to their full capacity. He also felt that when the team got together, they proved to be an average team with average talent. The team had a difficult time this season because of their new placement in the competitive Freeway League.

Various factors contributed to the 1978-1979 J V team. One factor was the many players who worked hard to succeed. Having adequate basketball skills was a major requirement for being a member of the J V Basketball team. During practices, these skills were reviewed along with defense. According to Coach McCourt, the team's best aspect was its defense, which it applied to prevent the opponent from scoring. Another element was the players who contributed to the team: Tony Perez, Mike Crum, Mike Alvino and Charles Figueroa.

The 1978-1979 team held together well in spite of the season's record. Encouragement from the student body helped to keep the team's spirit high.

Success Through Skill

The 1978-79 year proved to be a very good year for the Soph/Frosh Basketball team because of its change to the Freeway League. One of the team's advantages was that no one could anticipate its next move.

According to the Soph/Frosh coaches, Mr. Keith and Mr. Mesenhimer, the player's skills improved considerably since the beginning of practices which were held two hours a day, five days a week. After school work-outs consisted of running and timing of practices to give the necessary agility required of the basketball players. When the coach was asked why so much practice was necessary, he replied, "Practice makes perfect!" The winning games proved that those long hours of practice paid off. The winning season fulfilled the team's desire to have a successful year.

Another great aspect of the 1978-79 team was its willingness to work together. There were many players who encouraged their teammates. The freshmen captains, Jim De Groot and Brad Lebsack, and the sophomore captains, Rick Garza and Richard Martinez, helped to inspire the team and to share with it their knowledge of the sport. With the team's will to work hard and play together, 1978-79 proved to be a successful year.

The Girls' Varsity Basketball team had a difficult time during the 1979 season. Coach Brown stated that "since there were many new, young members, there were many fundamental faults, such as poor dribbling, positioning and rebounding." In spite of this, the team displayed good spirit and hustle.

Among the new members were three returning Varsity players, Norma Adamson, Shirley Johnson, and Francis Chow, who provided leadership qualities through their experience and knowledge of the game.

In order to keep reflects sharp, practices were held often. The team could be found in the gym practicing from one and one half to two hours per day. When league games started, practices were cut down. During their daily drills, the team worked to perfect their shooting and ran vigorous excercises to build up their stamina.

Although the 1978-79 season wasn't that successful, the team held together well and worked with high spirits.

A Young but Strong Team

Lisa Vitcovich gives complete effort to reach the ball.

The 1978-1979 Girls' Junior Varsity Basketball team thrived upon a season of triumph. The girls met with a few obstacles on their journey to success, but they conquered every one of their difficulties. One of these hindrances was the fact that most of the team members were inexperienced underclassmen. Another inconvenience was the change from the Empire League to the Freeway League. With this switch of leagues, the girls and the coaches did not know what to expect of the other teams. Gradually, everyone became adjusted, and with the help of assiduous practices which included running, passing, and shooting, the girls gained skills and confidence. The team's spirit grew as they experienced new offensive and defensive game situations. The players' pride and loyalty for the team was also attained under the leadership of Lorena Mague, a dedicated player. Lorena assisted the team members in any way that she could.

At the end of the season, Coach Baca, Coach Carnegie, and the girls felt that they had "come a long way" working and maturing to reach their goal of doing well in the new league.

"Endurance Agility and Hard Work"

Coach Adams

The season for the 1978-79 Varsity Field Hockey Team was both exciting and disappointing. These were times to remember. Illness and injuries plagued the players, so they compensated for this turn of events by moving JV players up to the Varsity team. Two of the talented JV players to be promoted were Freshmen Annette Brown and Annette Sandoval, who never before played Field Hockey.

Nonetheless, they managed to overcome their disadvantages and began winning games. Their goals were set for Freeway League Champions, if not C.I.F.

Togetherness is what Coach Debbie Adams accounted for their success, "We're a tight group and we work well together." She noted that this was necessary, considering that they had a new coach and a new league.

Players merited for their prominent abilities were Colleen Trigg-link, Terry Little and Diane Caldera-forwards, and Chanelle Calhoun-halfback. These team members were noted by Coach Adams for their "good behavior and excellent attitudes." Coach Adams also felt that the Varsity Field Hockey team came a long way during their season, and worked hard for their victories.

"We overcome Inexperience because We are Determined"

A. Sandoval.

Inexperience was not a handicap for the Junior Varsity Field Hockey team. As newcomers to a sport such as field hockey, success could only be hoped for, but the JV team was cooperative and eager to learn the game.

With spirit, pride and determination, outstanding players such as Ruby Way, Karen Ogilvie, and Co-captains Alma Sandoval and Cindy McFadden joined to form a well disciplined team. Alma Sandoval and Cindy McFadden were recognized for their abilities such as their stick maneuverability and endurance, which were essential skills in playing the game.

Coach Debbie Adams commented on the JV team's talent, stating that "the team learned quickly and went a long way." Like the JV team which was new to hockey, Coach Adams was new to the school, having had previous experience playing hockey in Australia. Ms. Adams' outlook for the next year was good. She stated that "the 1979 Junior Varsity team would make a 1980 Varsity C.I.F. team."

Just For Kicks

Keeping a standard that was set by previous Saddleback teams, the Varsity Soccer team displayed outstanding potential. Winning their first two games by a decisive margin, the 1979 squad proved to be among the finest teams in Saddleback's history. Led by outstanding players such as Manual Orozco and Juan Placencia, the soccer team was placed in the Orange County Soccer League. Coach Mike Conover remarked that he was extremely surprised by his team's showing in the tough new league and that C.I.F. was a definite possibility. Coach Conover's only worries came from the private school, as in, Mater Dei and Servite. The teams pride together with support from the student body encouraged the Varsity soccer team to strive for perfection.

Practice Builds the Team

Coached by Mr. Mike Conover and Mr. Juan Sandoval the 1979 J. V. Soccer team was one of the best in Saddleback's history. Headed by captain Oscar Mendoza, the team triumphed in the leagues throughout the city. The Sophomore class seemed to show the most strength on the J.V. squad. Practicing with the Varsity team gave the J.V. players a chance to perfect their skills by playing a more difficult game. The J.V. players proved their dedication by continuing to play until nightfall. The practice schedule was unusual due to the need for a great deal of skill in order to play soccer. Oscar Mendoza, Jose Gomez, Sergio Saldivar and Rafael Herrera demonstrated outstanding soccer skills both in practices and during games. The J.V. Soccer team proved that dedication and hard work were the necessary ingredients for a strong team.

A Rare Breed

In the Winter of the 1978-79 school year, there were strange sightings reported by the Saddleback student body. It was said that there were human type animals attending classes all through the winter. These creatures were described as thin and pale, and marred with scratches, bruises, and other signs of "physical abuse." They were known to gather in a herd known as a team. Each day the team disappeared into a steamroom located in Room 137. It was thought that this habit was connected to the physical abuse these creatures endured. Once or twice a week the team would gather in the Gym to engage in battle against other creatures from neighboring schools.

Those meetings in the Gym seemed to have definite rules and objectives. Two creatures, one from each school, faced off one another in an upright position. It was reported that both would try to gain control over the other creature. If one were successful, points were also given for turning an opponent over to his backside. The contest was stopped if one of the opponents were flat on his backside for a short period of time, with the one that was on top receiving the sign of victory by the raising of a paw. The match was finished when each team had sent out thirteen of its team members, one by one, to compete in the contest.

If you wondered what these creatures were, they were the Saddleback High School Wrestling Team. The team was lead by the outstanding wrestlers, Fred Galvan and Jon Tuin. Although the team was young, many members experienced tremendous success.

The team was run by an outstanding coaching staff. Coaches Dick Lindner, Jeff Jacquot, and Mike Mahoney performed an excellent job of rebuilding the wrestling program. Although more work was needed, the Roadrunner Matmen made outstanding strides.

Hardwork, Discipline Builds Self Esteem

The Junior Varsity Wrestling Squad consisisted primarily of athletes that had never wrestled before. The season was spent learning the basic skills of wrestling. With the basic moves, each wrestler knew that he could win his share of matches, and wrestlers like Don Holderman and Marty Pesak won nearly all of their matches.

Coach Linder, who started several wrestling programs, was given the task of starting yet another. With the help of his assistants, Mr. Jacquot and Mr. Mahoney, Coach Linder completed another successful take off.

The seasons agenda consisted of a number of tournaments in which wrestlers were given a chance to win medals. They also competed in dual meets with each team in the league.

The 1978-79 season was one of learning and of hard work, as well as one of fun and success.

6:30 A.M. Makes A Better Swimmer

Discipline and hard practice enabled the varsity swimmers to develop into an outstanding squad. Team practice started at 6:30 A.M. and again after school. Due to the nature of the sport and the constant preparation that was essential to becoming an excellent swimmer, the team pursued a rigorous schedule. Working together as a team, the varsity squad entered a tough new league with a bang. Coach Contino described the team as being a very tight group in which all the players, who are captained by Ted Elliott and Brian Neal, worked together with pride. The coach commented that the strength of the swimming team seemed to be coming from the Junior class. Coach Contino was glad that his team had matured and that team members had improved their attitude toward the sport.

Frosh/Soph Tankmen Take Pride in What They Do

A change in league placement resulted in a decline in the number of wins that the Frosh/Soph Swimming team experienced. As newcomers to the Freeway League, they worked diligently to attain the perfection necessary for a victorious season.

Even with continuous practices, Coach Contino felt that the new 4-A league was "A little above our heads," considering that the team should have been in a 3-A league. He reasoned that Saddleback's Frosh/Soph Swimming team was too small to compete adequately with the rest of the teams in the league.

Although a lack of interest prevailed among the Saddleback students, the Frosh/Soph team still had its outstanding swimmers. Included were Chris Rocha and Co-captains Jon Humphries and Ron Binggeli, who were noted for their leadership which aided the team in competition.

Even though the outlook was not tremendous, Coach Contino acknowledged that the Frosh/Soph team showed dedication and maturity.

Bat-tling for Perfection

The 1979 Varsity Baseball team proved to be very competitive in the new Freeway League. In each game, the team members performed to the best of their abilities, putting forth a strong defensive game. The team's main strength consisted of pitching and fielding. The players matured athletically throughout the season and overcame the disadvantages of being in a new league. Varsity Coach Mr. Robert Mangram stated that one of the drawbacks was the fact that there was no way of knowing the other teams' coaches and the ways in which they coached. Another encumbrance was not knowing the other teams' strengths and weaknesses. As the season progressed, the Varsity team conquered these disadvantages with the aid of scouts.

The team was led to success by outstanding players Jim Pisciotti, catcher, Rudy Ruelas, short stop, and Mel White, pitcher. These players exhibited good athletic ability, knowledge of baseball, and hustle. In order to improve themselves, they, as well as the rest of the team, practiced from two to two and one half hours daily, including Saturdays and holidays. The Varsity team as a whole worked well together to become very representative of the league.

At the conclusion of the season, Coach Mangram noted that the combination of the team members' skill and their enjoyment of the game helped to encourage the players to give their full effort toward winning.

Good Attitudes and Hard Work

The 1979 JV Baseball players and Coach Pat Quinn were confident of the team's ability to do well in the Freeway League. They felt that the squad would finish among the top four teams in league competition with a winning record. Their confidence was based on the fact that in comparison to the 1978 team, the 1979 JV Baseball team was much stronger. The strength of this team was superior to others because the previous sophomore team was very competitive and because all of the players had moved up to JV. Another reason for their confidence was that the players were dedicated and willing to work hard during practice.

Practice for the JV members consisted of six days of pitching, batting, fielding, and throwing techniques which lasted from two to three hours. Coach Quinn felt that Jerry Freels, Hector Hernandez, and Howie Wellema provided the outstanding batting necessary for a winning record.

Together, the JV players and Coach Quinn materialized their assurance of success into a reality. They proved to themselves and to their opponents that they were prepared to face new challenges on the Varsity team in the upcoming years.

Batting, Fielding, Scoring!

Although it was the first time that he had coached a Soph-Frosh baseball team in several years, Coach Mr. Jerry Witte felt confident that his players had worked hard and had done their best to prepare themselves for a future level of Varsity competition. Coach Witte commented that "the team was young, inexperienced, and very enthusiastic. I enjoyed working with them and hope to return for the 1980 season."
Long, hard practices were necessary in order to prepare the young men for defensive plays. Hours of batting practice were also an essential means of preparation for a good offensive team.

Some of the outstanding players in the 1979 season were Louis Verino, pitcher, Pat Jackson, catcher, George Hernandez, second baseman, and Paul Arroyos, shortstop. Each member contributed to the team's strong defensive efforts and launched it effectively against the opposition.

Aggressive and Eager to Win

The Varsity Softball team's spirited attitude, joined by the support from the student body, made the players more aggressive and eager to win.

Contributing to the team's experience were returning players, Diane Caldera, Kathi Hagen, Vicki Hinojosa, Shirley Johnson, Colleen Trigg, and Teresa Warne.

Under the guidance of Coach Mr. Neal Brown, the girls practiced every day for two hours reviewing defensive drills and plotting the offensive strategy which made Saddleback's team evenly balanced and well-rounded for an unbeatable combination.

New to SHS, the team entered the freeway league and encountered many advantages as well as disadvantages. Neither Saddleback nor its opponent knew exactly what to expect; but, since the Varsity Softball team competed in C.I.F. the previous two years, the opponents were aware of Saddleback's superior playing abilities.

The year was a challenging and worthwhile experience for the tough Saddleback team.

Junior Varsity Softball Strikes Again

S. Watson

The Junior Varsity Softball team was coached by Ms. Yvonne Baca, who worked hard to prepare the team to advance to 1980 varsity competition. There was an exceptionally large number of girls who tried out, but only those with outstanding skills and attitudes were selected to play on the JV team.

Although the team was young and tough, "there were no single outstanding players on the team," commented Coach Baca. "All were good and we won as a team, not as individuals." JV softball players worked on basics every day and improved their skills in order to be competitive in the new freeway league.

The JV softball team enjoyed winning, as well as playing and practicing, together. When asked about the reason for the team's success, Coach Baca replied "that the success was attributed to the hard work, pride, and dedication of the players."

Tracy, this was our sophomore year and it was great! Hope next year is as good. Have a good summer, okay?

Love,
Susan

Experience Adds Depth and Success

Miss Pauline Quesnel, the coach of the badminton team, felt that in 1979, the badminton players did very well in league competition. "The experience of the numerous returning players added depth to the team," Coach Quesnel stated. All varsity players were returning letterwomen who added a considerable amount of strength to the team.

The only disadvantage of being in a new league, Miss Quesnel believed, was the lack of knowledge in planning strategies, since the other teams were so unpredictable. On the other hand, she thought it was best to go into a match with the idea of being as good as, or better than, the other team.

The badminton team witnessed an increased amount of support from the student body. For the first time in many years, Miss Quesnel had to turn away students who tried out for the team because the sign-up was too large.

Trang Pham, Alice Melville, Veronica Middleton, and Minette Malek were all outstanding doubles players. "The girls never gave up; they kept trying through the end of the match. I anticipated that they would make it to the C.I.F. finals," commented Coach Quesnel.

In order to perfect and improve their skills for league matches, the team members practiced every day from 1:50 to 3:30 p.m.

Miss Quesnel was disappointed that the league voted against making badminton available as a co-ed sport. "I believe that if the sport were co-ed, its popularity would have been increased. The sport deserved the attention because it was such an exciting one to play."

Confident And Experienced

The Saddleback Girls' Varsity Swim team began the 1979 season as a solid, experienced team. With eight returning JV league champions, they also began the season with confidence and determination even though they knew a new league meant a big stress on the Varsity events. The new league also had its advantage, because many of the other teams had strong champion swimmers, it gave the Varsity swimmers the chance to work with their stronger opponents.

The diving competition added dimension to the Girls' Aquatic team which was led by junior Terry Little. Those additional points made a significant difference in the league scores.

The Girls' Swim team practiced mornings and afternoons at work-outs which entailed lifting weights and practicing a specific skill in each swimmer's particular event. These work-outs were needed to continually build better strength and breathing capabilities for longer resistance. The sport, as a whole, had progressed so rapidly in the past years that it was necessary to practice as much as possible in order to keep up with the other teams in the new Freeway League.

According to Coach Contino, sophomore Lauren Chamberlain proved to be a "very strong swimmer!" Sophomores Sherry Knapp and Colleen Magee were described as being "very competitive", and Shana Wolfe and Cathy Nestlinger proved that they were "good freestylers" among the stronger Varsity swimmers.

Coach Mike Contino felt that the success of the swim team was developed from the strong potential with which they had built throughout the season.

Coach Mr. Mike Contino and the Girls' JV Swim team entered the season feeling that the year was going to be a prosperous one. More girls went out for the team due to the high interest in sports exhibited by the student body. This added interest not only enlarged the team, but also unloaded the extra burden that J.V. swimmers often have. "Because of the J.V.'s size, some of the swimmers were placed in Varsity events due to the lack of Varsity Specialty Swimmers," commented Coach Contino. Compared with previous years, the girls who tried out, according to coach Contino, were stronger as far as swimming technique was concerned.

The Girls' Junior Varsity Swim team, although young and untried at the beginning of the season, gained maturity and experience as they progressed through the season. All of the girls from the '79 team were underclassmen and were expected to return as strong enthusiastic veteran Varsity swimmers.

The Junior Varsity team was an eager and hardworking group of girls who gained enthusiasm through their spirited attitude which they hoped to uphold for years to come.

Striving for Excellence

Mr. Mike Campbell, the boys' Varsity Tennis Coach, felt that the team would be in a battle for second place during league competition. He stated that in 1978 a standard of excellence was established, and the best tennis season was witnessed by Saddleback. Coach Campbell felt that the 1979 team was capable of matching these same standards.

Because Saddleback entered a new league, Coach Campbell felt that there were many disadvantages facing the team. "We had begun to make an impact in the Empire League and would have been going to C.I.F. if we had not had to compete against the Fullerton schools-Sunny Hills and Troy," he said.

Mr. Campbell commented that much support had come from the administration. "They helped the team by resurfacing the courts, putting up new fencing, and keeping the courts lighted."

Todd Isackson, Jerry Hattox, and Tito Aguirre displayed excellence in their tennis skills and techniques. The coach attributed their outstanding ability to the "daily practice and repetitions that failures did not enjoy doing."

Many hard hours of practice and devotion were displayed by all of the team members in order to improve the essential tennis techniques. Daily practice sessions, lasting three hours each, were attended by all players, many of whom spent even much of their own spare time on the courts.

Coach Campbell and his team members looked forward to a very successful, rewarding, and competitive season.

One of Greg Hernandez's strong points is his powerful serve.

Young but Challenging

Despite the inexperience and lack of summer school, the JV Tennis team proved that they could still be great tennis players. Mr. Mike Campbell felt that the teams were at a great disadvantage without summer school, for many hours of practice were lost; however, the team members made up for the lost time by practicing three hours a day after school.

Mark Correa and Darcy Miller added to the strength of the JV team. The coach stated that they practiced their skills repeatedly in order to perfect the various techniques.

Competing in a new league was a great disadvantage. Coach Campbell commented that "the better tennis schools had students who had been playing since the age of eight with direction from coaches, and we had to attempt to make up for all of their experience."

Mr. Campbell emphasized that the JV team was "challenging." "They were a young team. If they can absorb the coaching, they will be great."

Track

The 1979 Saddleback High School Track team, as a unit, was competitive; however, to take a closer look, one had to examine the team in separate categories. The meets were divided into two groups: running events and field events.

Various athletes competed in the running events, which consisted of sprints, distances, hurdles, and relay races. The individuals who excelled were sprinters Gary Stenlund, Carlos Cage, Victor Ramirez; distance runners, Lawrence Damore, Carl Stewart; hurdlers, Carlos Estrada, Jon Tuin; the 440 yard relay team, Carlos Cage, David Martinez, Armo Black, Gary Stenlund; and the mile relay team, Victor Ramirez, Carlos Estrada, Jon Tuin, and Gary Stenlund.

Carlos Estrada is running in full stride during his leg of the mile relay.

Field

The field events, which consisted of jumping events, shot-put, discus, and the pole vault also contributed outstanding athletes. Among those noted as valuable participants were high, long, and triple jumpers, Armo Black, Remy Black, Bill Lozano, Darrell Adams and shot-put and discus throwers, Greg Franklin, Manuel Sandoval, Richard Mavers, and Jose Cantillo. Participants in the track and field events combined their talents to produce a competitive team effort at each Freeway League meet.

Remy Black begins his ascent on the high jump bar.

Armand Black reaches back to receive the baton from Gary Stenlund on the 440 yard relay.

After the firing of the starting gun, Armand Black explodes from the blocks.

Danny Wilson extends his body on the long jump.

Completing his put, Greg Franklin watches to see how far the shot will go.

Solar Energy

In 1975, the Saddleback Track team began a tradition which the 1979 Track team emulated in fine fashion. This tradition could have been summed up in two words- "Solar Energy."

The term obviously stemmed from the sun's reputation for giving off energy. It was also derived from the fact that Coach Knapp's upper cranium attracted a greater quantity of sun than most. So, in honor of this phenomenon, the team carried out certain rituals.

The "ritualistic ceremony" which occurred before every track meet included a series of "Solar Jacks"- jumping jacks that were counted out by spelling the word "solar." Following the solar jacks was a sequence of stretching exercises. Clinging together, the team ran a lap in single file. Not a word was uttered until the entire team had finished its lap; however, when the members finished the lap, there was plenty of opportunity for them to express their emotions. A serious prayer followed the outburst of excitement. Following the prayer, the team chanted a short verse that let the other team know that Saddleback was prepared to compete. To complete the solar rites, the team shouted "Coach Knapp, take off your hat!"

As obscure as these events seemed, the team enjoyed engaging in this simplistic activity, meet after meet, because to the Saddleback Track team, track was more than just a sport.

Carefully maintaining his balance, Jose Cantillo prepares to release the shot-put.

At the end of his wind up, Richard Mavers brings his arm around to throw the discus.

Victor Ramirez smiles after completing his event.

Team members, Michael Parham, David Martinez, Eddie Herrera, Gary Stenlund, Carlos Cage, Carlos Estrada, and Coach Rich James discuss the track meet.

Victor Ramirez, Carlos Estrada, Jon Tuin, Gary Stenlund, and Carlos Cage congratulate each other after winning the mile relay at the Santa Ana Relays.

Experiencing Individual Successes

Coach Jim Knapp and the Boys' Soph/Frosh Track team felt that they possessed the determination to win even though they had lost their key sophomore tracksters, Carlos Cage, Carlos Estrada, and Jose Cantillo to the Varsity squad. The Soph/Frosh team still had the challenge of being in a new league thus enabling them to gain experience from competing. The team also exhibited strong school spirit which added to its confidence.

Each Soph/Frosh team member excelled in his specialty event and strove to be the best in Orange County. Coach Knapp felt that his young team accomplished their goal of becoming a strong running team.

The team members improved their skills during practices which lasted an hour and a half to two hours and were held three days a week. It was necessary for the runners to become conditioned and to achieve their goals. This required both skill and endurance.

The success of the 1979 Soph/Frosh Track team was attributed to the attitude and hard work of the runners and to their great spirit.

A Stride Towards Improvement

With a previous league championship in one hand and determination in the other, the Girls' Varsity Track team established a foundation for success in the new Freeway League. The team had not always been victorious. Through four years of hard work and dedication, the team matured and reached a new peak in 1979.

Along with their new success, the team obtained more support and interest from the student body, and for the first time in the history of Girls' Track, they ran a Junior Varsity team when applicable. The team, as a whole, consisted mainly of freshmen and sophomores, along with some returning letterwomen, all of whom worked together to form a well trained team.

Many returning athletes added strength and depth, while the freshmen and sophomores made additional contributions via their personal efforts. Some of the returnees included Teresa Warne, Yvonne Jackson, and Laura Heying, all of whom participated in C.I.F. competition.

Coaches, Miss Mary Meredith, Mr. Carson Madory, Mrs. Linda Snetsinger, and Miss Toni Finley inspired the team to strive for improvement. Coach Meredith commented that "positive thinking and concentration were essentials for success, and that you did not have to win to succeed, becuase improving yourself was more important." With this philosophy in mind, the 1979 Girls' Varsity Track team build a foundation which held against opponents. This foundation provided many victories to remember.

With perfect form, Mary Schwalm clears the bar easily.

Fleet-Footed Females Foremost in the Freeway League

Fleet-Footed Females Foremost in the Freeway League was the perfect illustration of the Girls' Varsity Track team. The team was rewarded for setting many new records by finishing on top in the Freeway League competition. After a successful year, the team looked back at the season as one of outstanding achievement.

Lupe Warnick and Helma Timmermans warm-up before practice.

Teresa Warne takes time out to relax and evaluate her performance.

Janiet Lindsey, Brenda Bundy, and Laura Heying, run stride-for-stride at the end of their race.

Although they are dedicated and work hard, the Girls' Varsity Track team finds time for fun.

Michele,
Well, it's another year + one more to go. Hopefully after our senior year, we'll stay just as close as we are now. - If you don't know by now, you are my bestest friend. No one can take that place in my heart but you. - I'll never forget the times that we've spent in the mall and the times that we've gone cruzing in Carlos' car. Next year I'll have to keep a supply of Ritz crackers in the closet so we can "throw a munch"
Thanks a lot for covering for me. And thanks for putting up with me when I got in my bitchy moods, but most of all, thanks for being yourself and my best friend!!!

Friends forever,
Jean

P.S. Hang in there Karen, I might come around

To Yvonne Jackson, I.O.U. one graduation kiss on the lips. And most of all I want to thank you for making High School a little easier.

"Iridescent Illusions"

Poetry and art were a meaningful part of each student's high school illusion. Each piece of art held a different meaning to it's creator because it was not merely a creation, but a product of the mind and of inner feelings.

Each individual expressed a sense of color and form in demonstrating his own "Iridescent Illusions." These iflusions conveyed the creator's own interpretation of art.

The word "art" was regarded in various ways by each student. For some students, art and poetry were ways of expressing their feelings and views. Others used their talent as a way of fulfilling unforgettable feelings of accomplishment.

Regardless of the interpretations, the forms of artistic "Illusions" held great meanings for the students of Saddleback.

Your Memory
The echo of your laughter
Lurks in my mind.
The shadow of your memory
follows behind.
The sadness in your smile can be seen in my eyes.
The heartbreak in your voice can be heard in my sigh.
That face so familiar
can be seen in my dreams.
Your walk I see everywhere,
or so it seems.
The soft kiss you gave the memory is still there.
If I follow the sound of your footsteps but get no where. . . . . .

Seagull

As I stand on this massive rock, the brisk wind caresses my feathers and the swift waves crash below me.

Motionless, I gaze with awesome wonder at the immeasurable horizon.

This is my home, this rock, this ocean, and the sky which presents a new flight with each rising sun.

I Was Once

I was once an infant in my mothers arms;
I was once an infant full of charm.
Then suddenly I was no longer an infant
with a childish face;
I was then a young lady with my own special place.
I was once a young lady in my boyfriends arms;
I was once a young lady full of charm.
Then, suddenly I was no longer a young lady to tell you true;
I was then a woman all the way through.
I was once a woman in my husbands arms;
I was once a woman full of charm.
Then, suddenly I was no longer a woman
sweet and bold;
I was again a lady, but this time old.
I am now an old lady in anyones hands,
and as of now this is how my life stands.
What happens next only He can tell,
but sooner or later all will be well.

Today, quickly moving into yesterday. Every moment that goes by brings me nearer to the time I know nothing about. There was once so much time. Tomorrow was just another day. But now, as I look out I see that tomorrow is my life. As I begin to separate from my security, I realize how much that I have taken for granted; those people to whom I owe so much for caring about me as much as they did and hopefully still do.

The future.....aiming for a goal. The possibility of failure arouses fear which can be a strong barrier on moving up. Wanting to hold back just a little longer. Time does catch up and sometimes passes right by leaving me far behind. Rushing to catch up, I find that I have lost control of my balance, but I must not fall.

I must slow down, get organized, and hope that the future will move in more slowly. There is so much that I want to do; people whom I have yet to meet; and, most important, life which I have yet to experience.

I do have a goal. If I reach it I will be happy. But I must remember ..... the effort of trying to reach the goal may be more important than the goal itself.

Life ..... so much of it. Always worrying about tomorrow letting today pass by. Life is much too important to be spent worrying about the future. Tomorrow I will begin living for today. The future will have to wait .....

It never failed to appear. All I had to do was close my eyes and I was transformed into a world of fantastic beauty- - - - a creation of my imagination and hopes. Nothing touched me in my peacefully built world of solitude.

Reality was but a dust speck. And realizing that reality could be blown away by a conjured gust of wind, it was again my hopes and imagination which stopped me. Maybe it was a foolish thought, but my hopes lay not only in that world of beauty, but also in that dust speck.

Confusion

Flying
Out. Away from reality
Towards an unknown destiny.
Fantasy.

I'd like to be alone a bit
so please just let me be.
There is too much pressure at this point.
I'm afraid that I might burst or worse . . .
I need my space
I need some time to find out where I am headed. And, to find out where I've been.
So, Please, please, go away.
No, wait.
I feel lonely.
Please stay.

For a while, anyway.

The Point of No Return
Some moments in our lives never end, and some objects on this earth never return.
Illusions,
as one sits in solitude on a never ending pier ponderin when the tide returns, and then when it will end.
Thinking and recalling past memories,
the passing wind, and time.

Gazing at the peach colored hands of a young child on the pier, wondering when it will end.

The Never Ending Road
I travel this road from day to day,
I always seem to be moving but never getting anyplace.
Every moment on this road is different;
Each day I see things I have never seen before,
and everyday I become a little wiser.
Sometimes I even run into traffic, but when it's all cleared up I keep moving on.
I meet friends and often forgive enemies,
This road was fresh and new when I first traveled upon it.
Now it is getting worn and soon will be a ruin.
I know someday this road will come to an end,
Then I will feel complete and good because I made
My own decisions on how to travel it.
This is my road, the road of life ever changing yet everlasting.

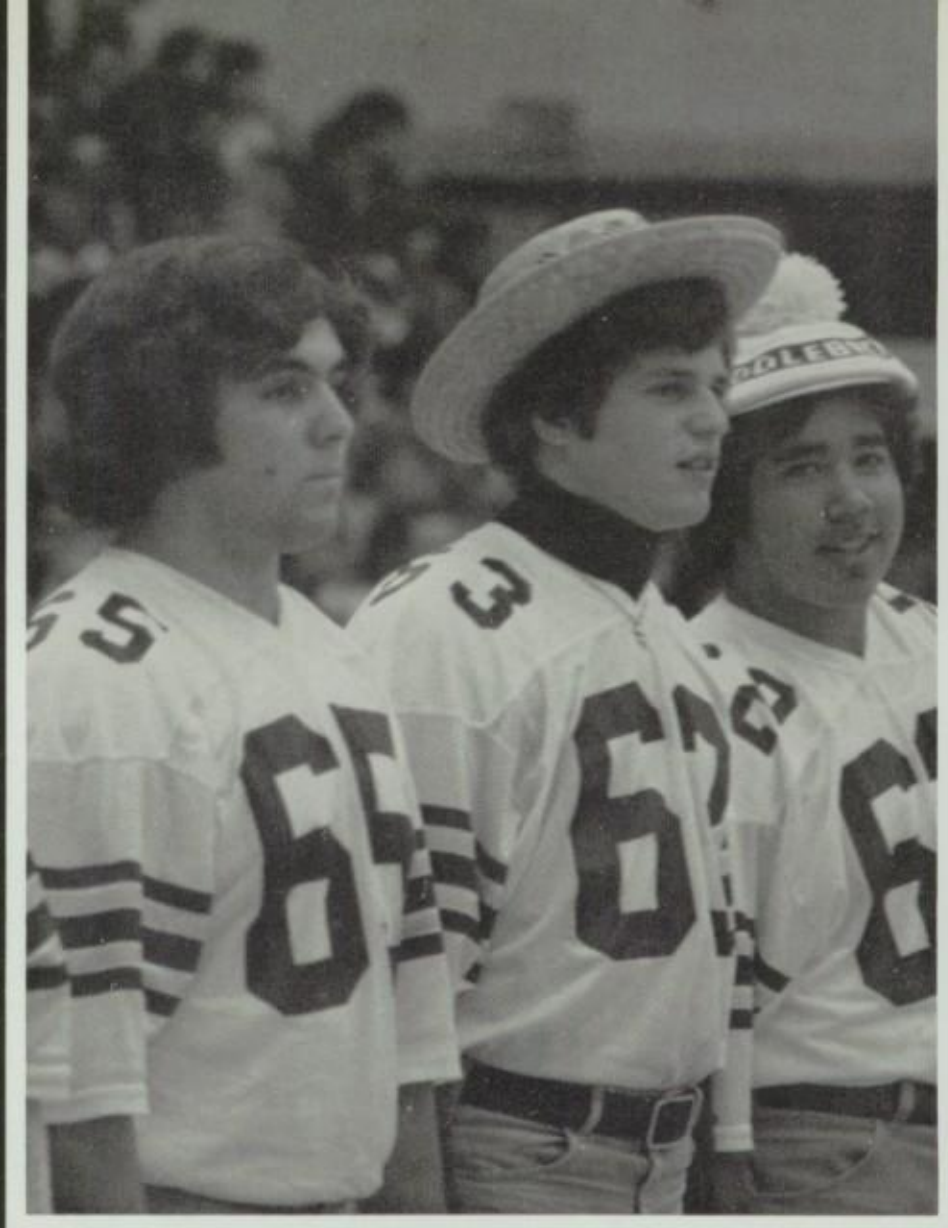
Spirit Belongs To All

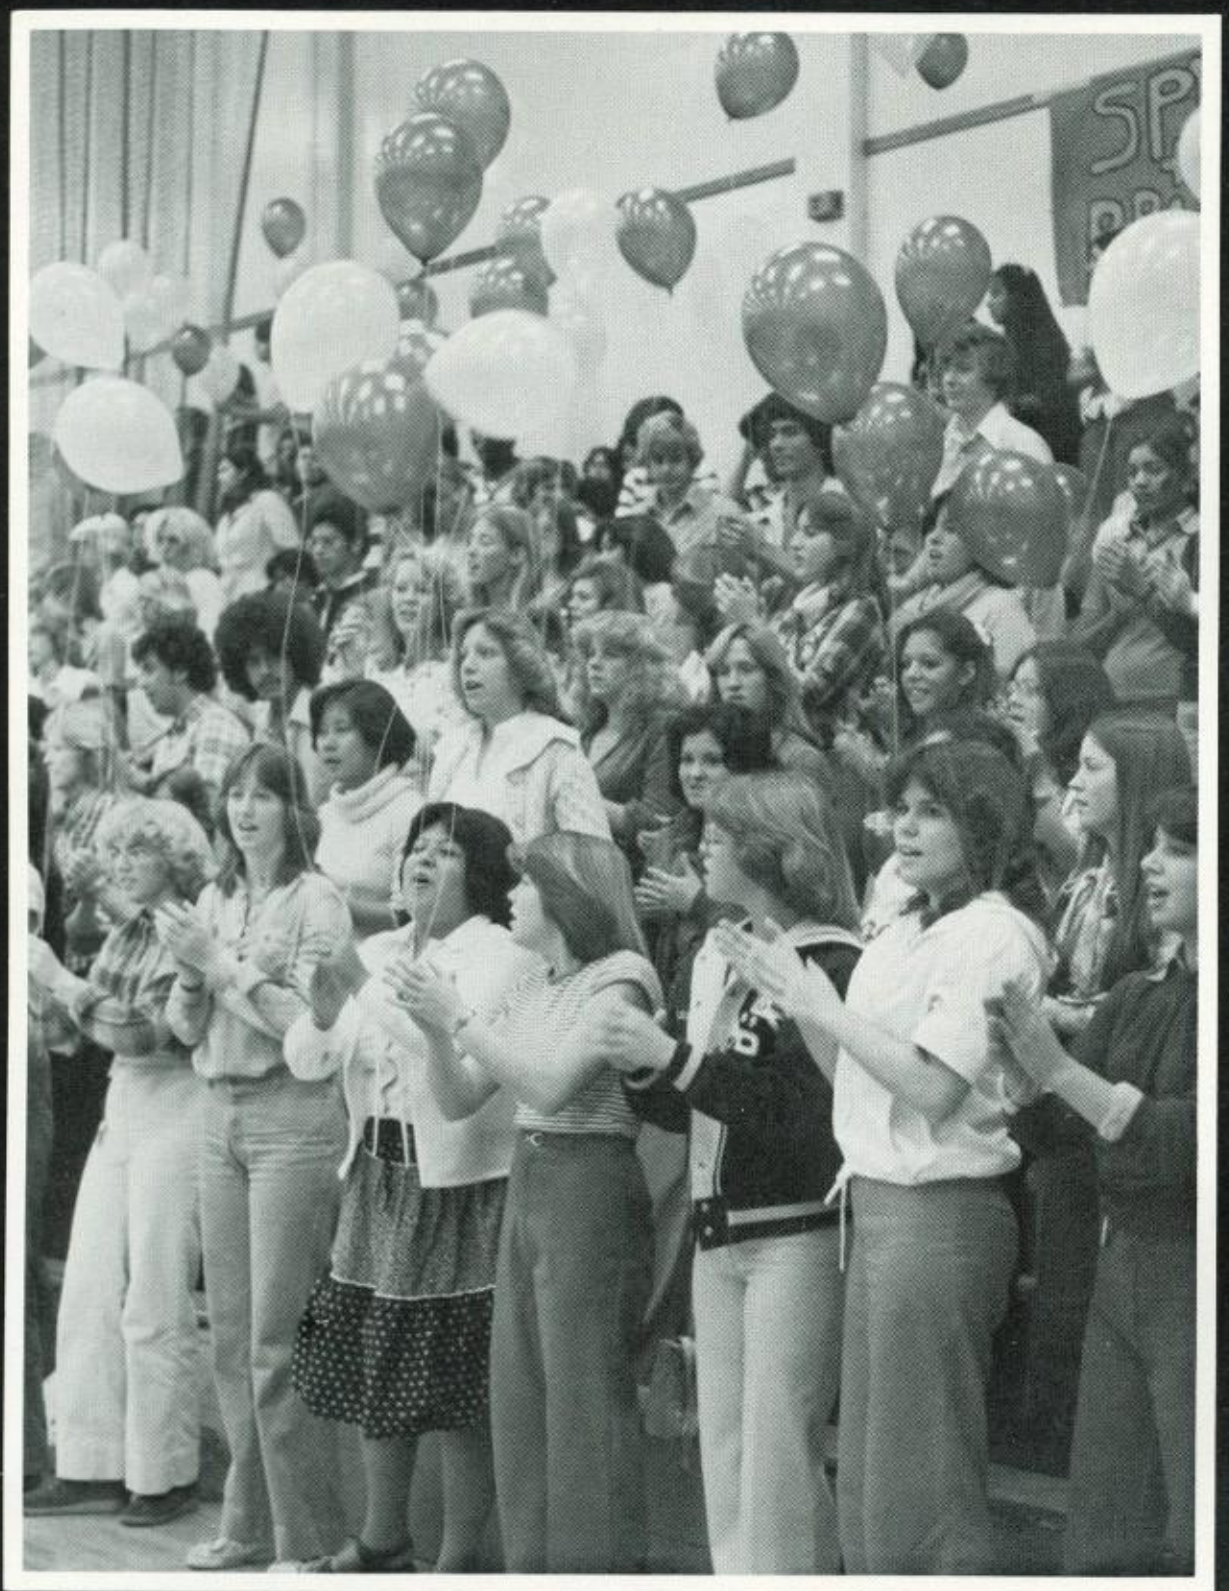
Not only did the Saddleback students display pride, but their Spirit was "sky high." Spirit was evidenced by the screaming crowds at football games, and the competition yells for the spirit-stick at assemblies. School spirit was always present and, like a rainbow it seemed to belong to all. This combined spirit and pride, produced a very colorful and exciting year.

Trying to equal Saddleback's Varsity Football Team is not an easy task for the Pep Squad.



The 1978 Varsity squad is introduced at a pep assembly.

Pride is evident on the face of Drill Team Captain, Donna Freeman.



Senior students are proud of the high spirited atmosphere that Saddleback is well known for.

Drill Team member Michelle Whalen has spirit that is "sky high!"

Promoting school spirit is the major task of the Roadrunner mascot, Simone Skotnica.

Proud to belong to the Saddleback High School Band are, Janiet Lindsey, Laura Bridges, and Viviana Parola.

Students Express Pride

The pride exhibited throughout the '78-'79 school year played a dominant role in every student's life. If they were not participating in sports, organizations or some other school function, they were supporting those students who were actively involved. Pride was reflected in the faces of those students who sang the Alma Mater after winning a football or basketball game, those who cheered for the Band and Pep Squad at parades, and those who were just proud to belong to the Saddleback High School community. Pride was essential in the spirited atmosphere for which Saddleback became well known.

Fads: Here Today, Gone Tomorrow

Many new and interesting fads were discovered with the birth of 1979. Through language, fashion, and spare time activities, students learned to incorporate these new crazes into their lives.

Fads ranged from "unusual," like going to the "Rocky Horror Picture Show" on Friday nights, to the "common," like girls having their ears pierced twice, and both guys and girls having permed hair. Every student became familiar with those fads and before we knew it they had been incorporated into practically everyone's life.

Disappearing as quickly as they emerged, what had been the rage one year, was simply not done the next. Even though we knew that our particular fads would die in time, we also knew that in time, they would become memories of our high school days for many years to come.

Demonstrating that Spirit is, indeed, "sky high," Jeanne Tolentino prepares to lead the basketball crowd in a cheer.

Double pierced ears, as shown by Leslie Lawton, are certainly a fashion fad.

Incorporating the "Annie Hall" look into her wardrobe is Tammy Soto.

Armando Gastello wears a three piece suit; another fashion fad for guys.

Friends Care

Friendship was a major part of our lives at Saddleback, for without it what was left? Our friends added colorful excitement to our lives, making problems which seemed hopeless, much easier to handle with their support.

Friendship was expressed in many different ways. Whether it was shown by attending football games together or just by sharing the lunch period with each other, every moment we spent with our friends seemed to make each day easier to cope with. Friendship was especially important during our high school years. Our need to be "one of the crowd" never seemed so important as when we shared our secrets, hopes, and frustrations with our best friends.

During the many changes we experienced while in our high school years, we found that one year's friend may find us separated the next year. We not only learned to grow mentally, but also socially, leaving those past memories, ours to remember.

Saddleback twins, Laura Mencum and Tammy Cole, get into the spirit of Homecoming week.

Varsity football players huddle together exhibiting their friendship before the upcoming game.

The Ultimate Dream

To own a car was the ultimate! Having a license, of course, made driving much more feasible. In order to obtain a license, however, every student had to enroll in and successfully complete state requirements and driver's training.

Once a license and a car were acquired, much time and effort were devoted to the upkeep of the car. For most males, a car served as a status symbol. To most females, however, a car was primarily a means of transportation. Some people enjoyed having a car because it enabled them to go out for lunch, to drive to sporting events, to travel to and from work, or merely to escape from life's pressures. But for others, a car simply meant no longer having to walk. In every person's life, there was always the dream of someday owning that special car.

Scanning the countless classified ads in hopes of finding a car to buy is Bill Lozano.

Bumming a ride after football practice is Gary Stenlund.

Having a car makes it easier for Sharon Casarus to arrive at Songleader practice on time.

Every day at 3:15 students gather in their driver's training cars to perfect driving skills.

Time Is Money

Money, like sand in an hourglass, sifted through our fingers before we had time to realize where it had gone. Saddleback students had no problem spending their money once they had the money in their hands. After a quick rush to the bank, they used their money to buy every necessity from food to cars.

During our high school years, money was not easily obtained so many teenagers spent a large portion of their time earning money. Yet, when they did have spare time, students spent their money wisely. Money was spent on fun and relaxation. Football and basketball games, disco dances, pizza, class rings, senior pictures, and graduation announcements were just a few of our immediate "needs."

Time was money to the students of Saddleback High School. We found that money was a very important word in a teenager's vocabulary.

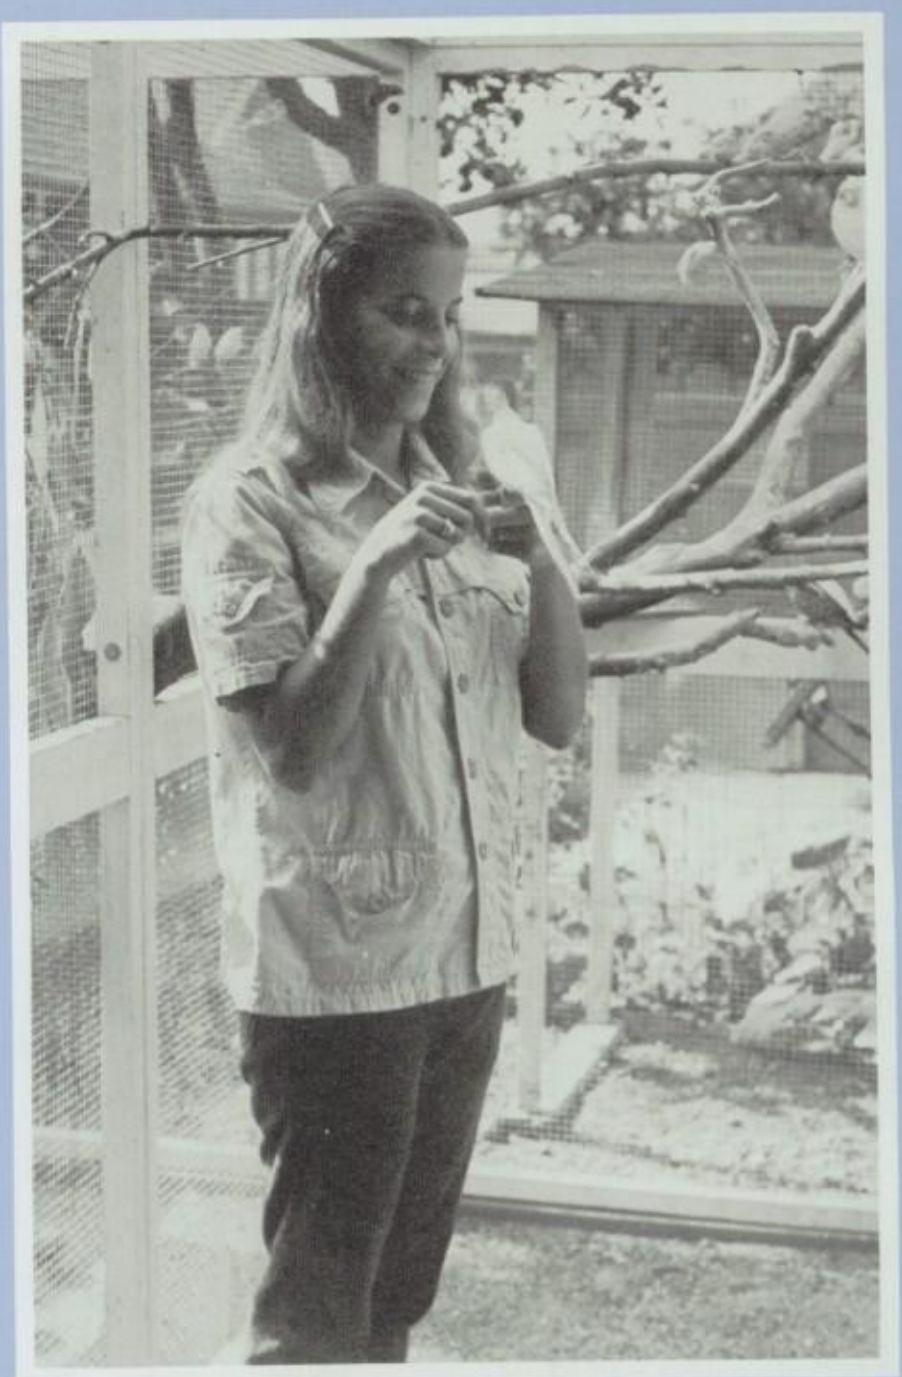
Expanding Our Horizons

Students found various ways to spend their spare time. Just as the colors of a rainbow reveal varying shades, so did the Saddleback student's hobbies and interests vary. Students took advantage of their free time by enjoying their favorite pastimes. There seemed to be no end to the multitude of exciting and unusual hobbies. While some students enjoyed exhilarating hobbies such as surfing, raquetball, and cycling, others preferred creative activities including painting and playing musical instruments. The most important aspect of acquiring sparetime was the opportunity for each student to express himself through a medium unique to him.



Breeding birds is an interesting hobby enjoyed by Linda Fugge.

Sharing the enjoyment of motorcycling is Jeff Fisher and his friend Joe Smith.

Right: Playing the accordian is a part-time interest for Joyce Mack.

An exciting challenge for Jeff Johnson is a day at the Big-O skateboard park.

An interest in cosmotology is shared by Vicki Taylor and Mary Woods.

Vicki and Valerie Baiocchini challenge each other to a game of pool.

Taking an interest in her family's pet rabbit is Terri Fugge.

Spending some time with her pet dog Sam is Susie Hatch.

Much of Jim Ureata's time is consumed with car repairs.

Right: As a member of the "Wonder Cycles" unicycle club, Stephanie Berger practices for many parade filled weekends.

Softly strumming her guitar is talented guitarist Debbie Welch.

Filling Empty Hours

Many Saddleback students filled their seemingly empty hours pursuing interesting and unusual hobbies. Students found excitement and satisfaction in everything from the challenge of repairing a car, to the enjoyment of unicycle riding. For others, the relaxation of softly strumming a guitar offered an avenue of escape from daily routines and responsibilities. Although these were only a few of the pastimes that members of the Saddleback High School student body incorporated into each hobby was as different and as exciting as the individual involved. The hobbies pursued were colorful examples of how SHS students chose to fill their empty hours.

Relaxing with a good book is Tara Hervey.

A game of chess fills many empty hours for Debbie Rogers and Lisa Green.

A Learning Experience

The new attendance procedure required many conferences between assistant principals of Control, Mr. Andrew Hernandez and Mr. Richard Theriot.

As a rainbow introduced a variety of colors, each school year introduced new philosophies and academic programs. The major change in the 1979 school year was a transition in the attendance procedure from print out sheets to the new Remedial Attendance Program, commonly referred to as R.A.P. Prior to R.A.P., the student presented a note signed by their parent to the attendance office. The office in turn recorded the student absence as either excused or unexcused. Under the new procedure, any student having five unexcused absences or seven unexcused tardies in any period became eligible for a two week R.A.P. program. The R.A.P. students met with Mr. Samuels daily from 3:00 to 6:00 P.M. During this two week R.A.P. period, the student was not permitted to participate in any interscholastic or extracurricular activities. In fact, he was barred from the school grounds during the regular student day. Although this new program may not have been too colorful for some students it provided many members of the student body with an incentive to attend school regularly and to arrive in class on time.

Arriving late to period two, Alice Casbarra signs for the first of her seven allotted tardies.

Right: Advanced Algebra is both challenging and frustrating for the typical high school student.

Senior, Mary Woods, has difficulty arranging her schedule.

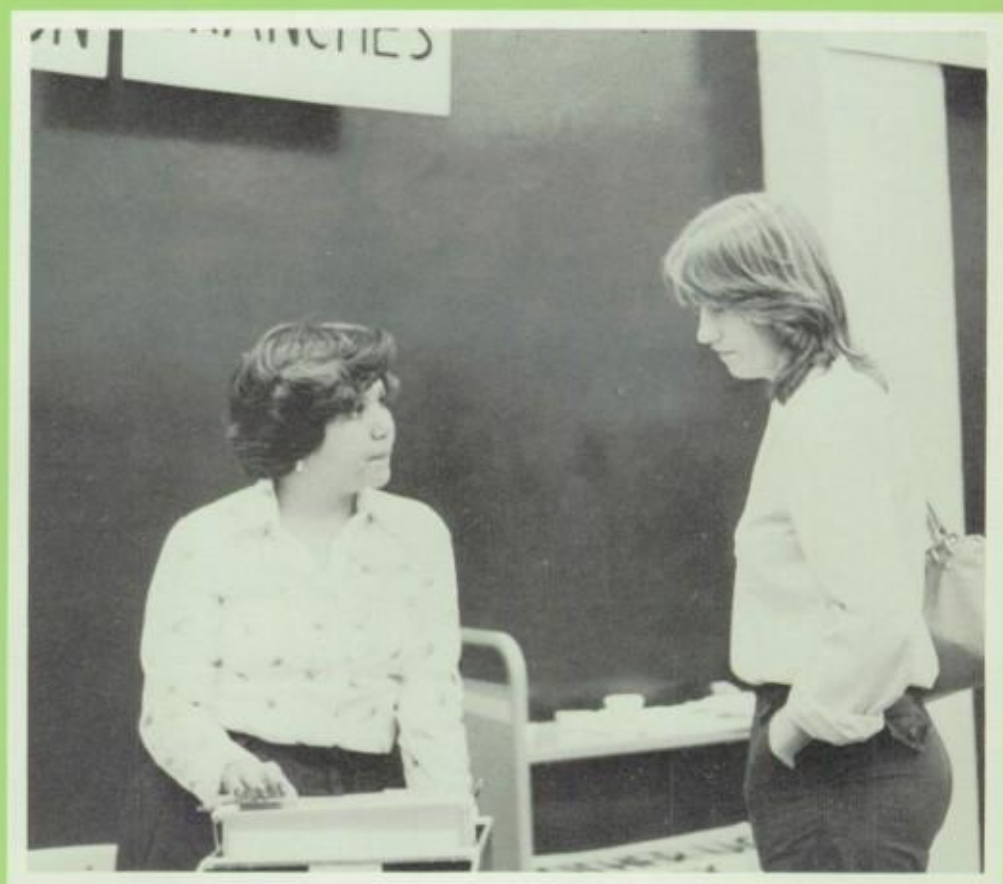
For Karen Chang, the library serves as a quiet place to study.

Devoted Time

Throughout the year, students devoted countless hours to academic pursuit. For those upperclassmen who had a dismissed period, the library served as a quiet place to catch up on homework or to prepare for an exam. For the less fortunate underclassmen, lunch served as a good time for last minute reviewing.

As freshman, we found the guidance and understanding of our counselors to be a necessity, for we were uncertain about our future. As seniors, however, we began to feel pressure from the immediate decisions which had to be made. College applications, what academic major to pursue and what career plans to follow, were only a few of the many dilemmas which we faced.

Although the many hours of hard work seemed to take time away from our youthful lives, academics proved to be more than just studying. For as time passed, we found that the benefits of learning enabled us to view life with a new and different perspective.

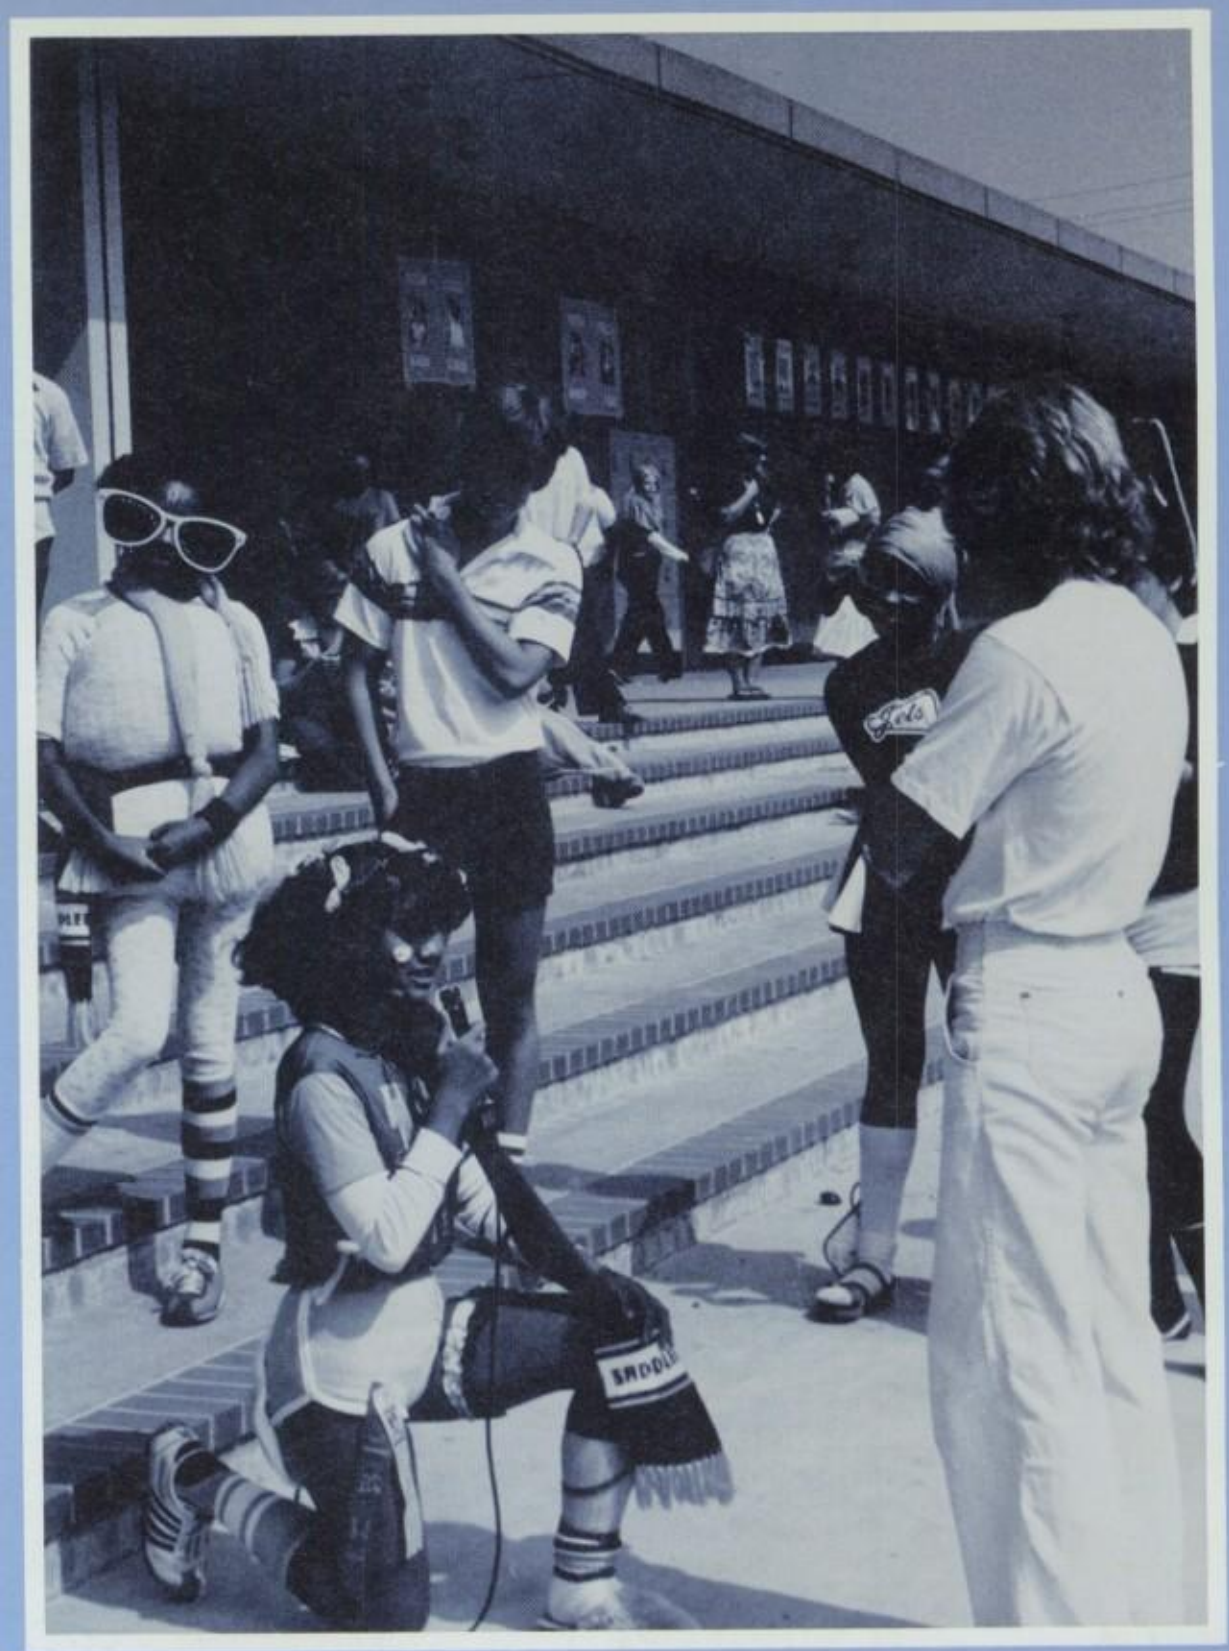


Attending college night to acquire needed information is Shirley Johnson.

Time Together

The students at Saddleback counted the minutes until lunchtime each day. Lunchtime was that short time period in which one was able to supplement his body with the energy needed for the rest of the day. And as a rainbow has many different colors, so did the students of SHS have many different ideas about an exciting lunch period. For some, lunchtime meant an opportunity to socialize with friends, to participate in lunchtime activities, or to update themselves on the latest homework assignments. Lunch was an escape from the classroom atmosphere, a time to catch up with yourself, and a time to take a good, long rest in the open air.

Time seemed to move so quickly during those precious moments allotted for lunch. When the bell rang to go to class, and the last words of our conversation were spoken, we began to realize that those moments were also memories of the good times we shared and that those short, priceless times of our high school years were just another hue in our rainbow.



Competing for the title of mascot is Janet Waataja.

With the advent of the film, Animal House, student Erik Terrari attempts to fashion himself after one of the film's crazy characters.

Enjoying their lunchtime together are Kathy Monday and Glenda Price.

"Spirit to Succeed" E. Krass

Saddleback High School had an outstanding academic program. I was pleased that great strides were being made in our WAR on illiteracy. Students who had experienced learning difficulties in the past were being given intensive help in the basic skills. Under the direction and support of a trained and caring staff, every student had the opportunity for success. Those of us associated with Saddleback High School were indeed fortunate to have had the opportunity to work with a student population of such outstanding potential and a community which was supportive and interested in providing the best education for its youth.

School spirit was at an all-time high. This was indicative of the type of students who attended Saddleback High School. Both our girls and boys athletic teams were victorious; each made a mark in the new Freeway League.

The 1978-79 school year promised to be one of the most exciting and rewarding in the history of Saddleback.

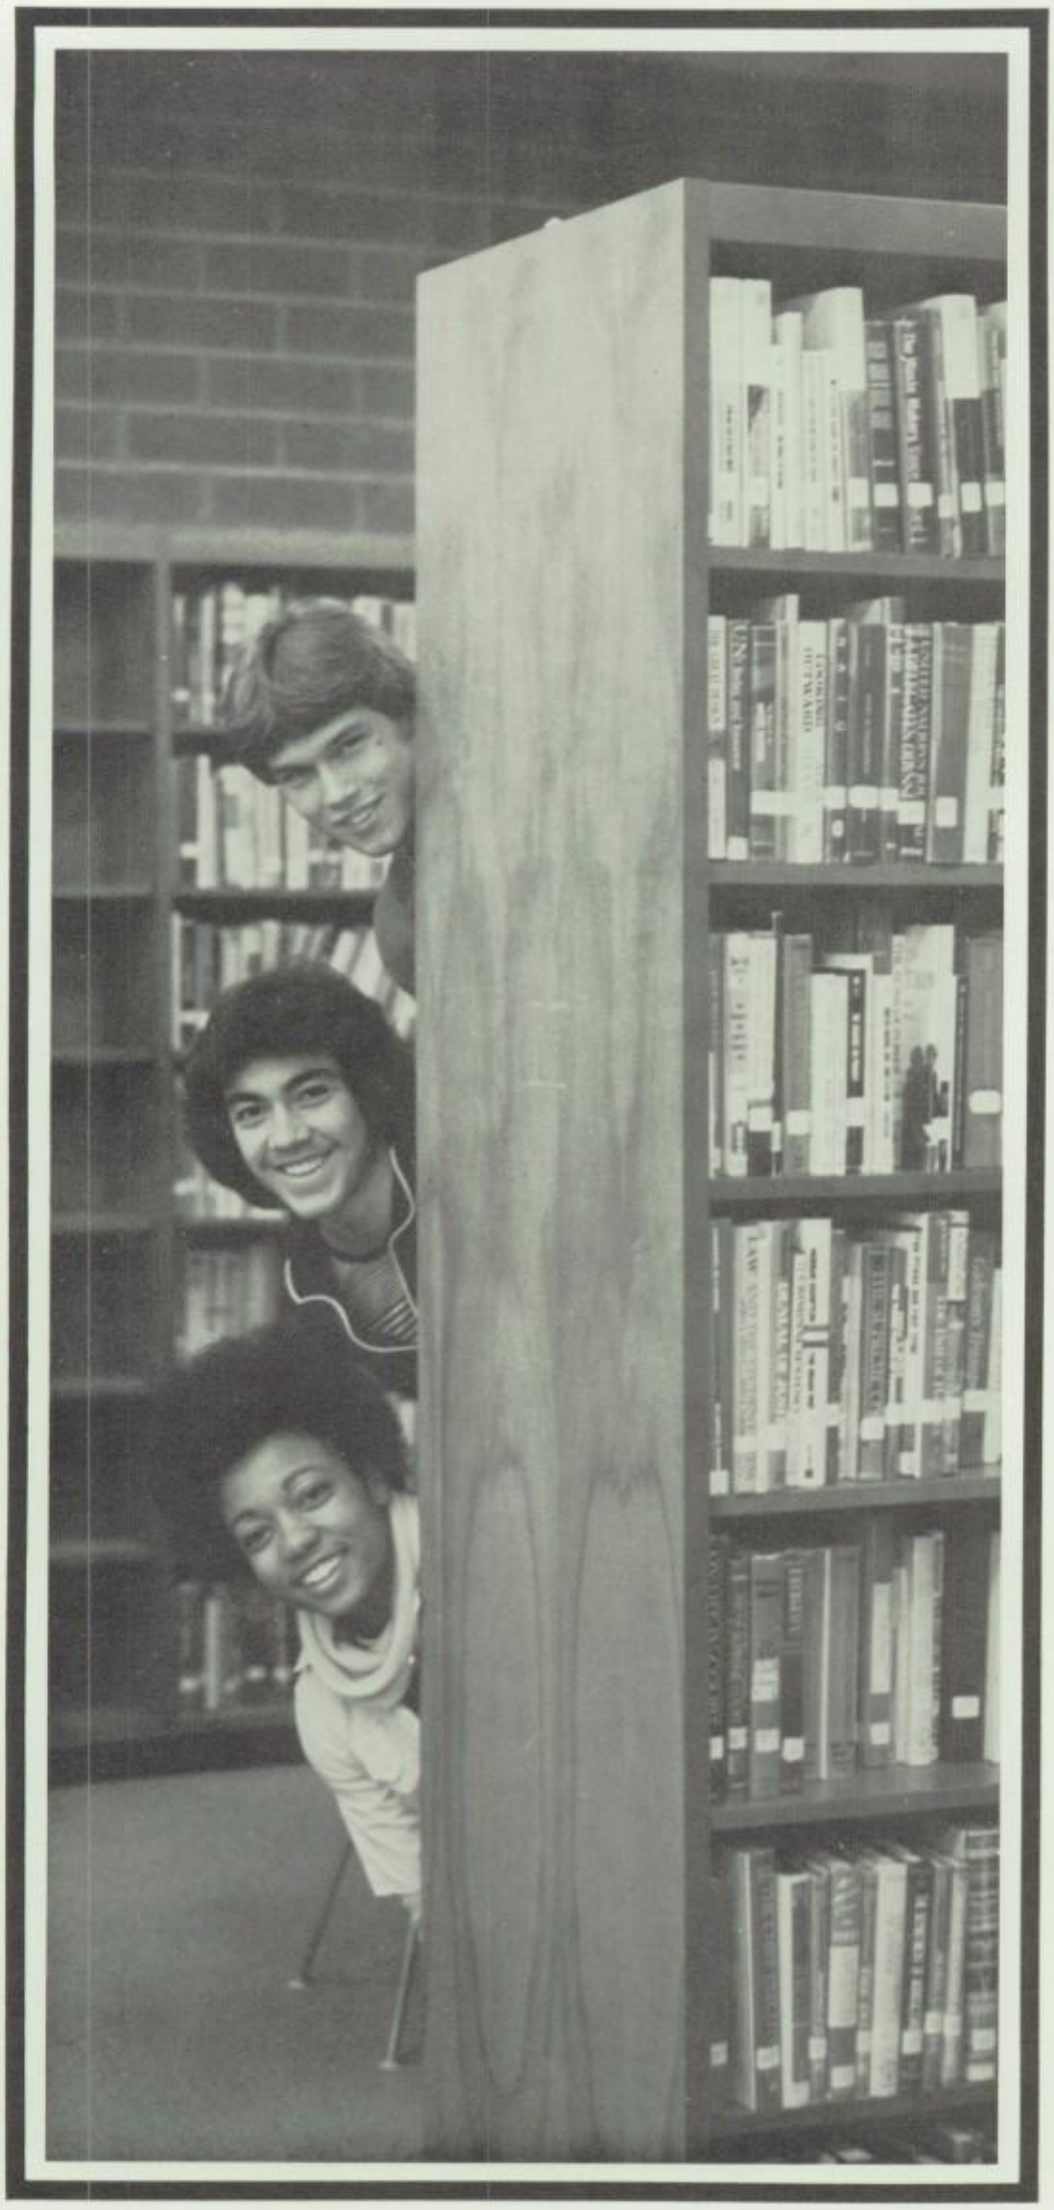
As our junior years slipped away, we looked toward the future and realized that we would soon face our senior year . . . the first step into our future. As underclassmen, we had dreamed of who we would become. Having reached our senior year, we found that the reality of our futures was right around the corner. During our last year in high school, we battled final exams, achievement test, and college applications. Upon graduation, we seniors faced a different world where we were no longer inside looking out. Learning, working, maturing and experiencing adult situations were the ways we became part of our new society. No longer could we sit back and put the blame on someone else, or forget about our responsibilities. The future was up to us alone. No matter how promising the future looked, we, as individuals had to take the first step outside and find our dreams for ourselves.

Rowdy and Fine



"Seniors exhibited the most spirit as well as they were the best academically and athletically" was the way Senior class President Jon Tuin summed up the Senior class. As we looked back on the 1978-1979 school year, we could see that Jon led the organization of Grad Night at Disneyland, the Senior Breakfast and the class gift as well as promoting individual spirit. Bill Lozano, Senior class Vice-president, agreed with Jon by commenting that "the class of 1979 was the greatest Senior class I have ever seen." Bill also noted that he enjoyed being involved during his Senior year. The fact that the athletic teams went to C.I.F. was what Yvonne Jackson, Senior class Treasurer felt gave seniors a sense of spirit and pride. There was no doubt that the senior class would be remembered as "Rowdy and Fine in '79".

Hi!
I would like to thank everybody whom I met at Saddleback H.S. which made my time here great. All of my American friends and teachers were super nice to me. I wish I could take you all back to Sweden with me. California was so much different than Sweden, and I had many new experiences and learned a lot of new things. Homecoming week was the week that I really enjoyed and remember the most. Everyone was so nice to me and I didn't think that I could love a school so much as I love Saddleback H.S.

Love,
Camilla

Hello Dear Ones,
I indeed had a wonderful year in California as an exchange student from Ghana, Africa. I had many of social and academic experiences. I was able to meet a lot of really nice people as a student in Saddleback High School. One aspect of school life which will always be fresh on my memory was the Homecoming Ceremony. I was honored as a princess! I would like to thank you all for allowing me into your community. Thanks for all the privileges that I had and long live Saddleback High School!

Thank You and Love to All,
Angelina

My name is Martina Jablonka; I come from Vienna, Austria. During my graduation year in Vienna, I applied for an International Scholarship at A.F.S. because I wanted to learn about people in a different country. I was very happy when I received the address of my host family, but I was much happier when I finally met them, for it was then that my experience actually started. Part of it was school life here at Saddleback where I learned many new things; generally about America, it's people and it's school system. I made friends with the teachers as well as with the students. They helped me in many new situations and were one reason for my quick and good adjustment. By sharing our nations. I brought Austria to my friends in Santa Ana, and I took America back with me.

Love and Thanks to All of You,
Martina

I was proud to have been chosen as an A.F.S. exchange student. As an exchange student, I lived one year in Kakamega, Kenya, East Africa. During that year I experienced different cultures and a new way of life. I encouraged all students to become involved in A.F.S. club as it was worthwhile if you were interested in different people and their cultures. I thank all of my teachers, especially Mr. Houston and Mrs. Tate, for helping me throughout the year.

Sincerely,
Viviana Parola

1. The Leonard Stieger family proved to be understanding as a host family to Swedish exchange student Camilla Immerstrand.
2. African foreign exchange student, Angelina Adigler shared her American experience with the Rudy Francis family.
3. Our exchange student from Austria, Martina Joblanka, was welcome by her American family the Ed Warnes.
4. Viviana Parola was selected to spend a full year in Africa as the American exchange student from Saddleback High School.

Looking 1982

Elected to serve as Freshman Class President, Marie Joyce Ocasion, set high goals for the class of 1982. "One of my goals was to have all freshmen involved in school spirit. I was really surprised that the freshmen were getting involved with assemblies and other activities," she stated. During the year, Marie planned to have candy sales, car washes, and balloon sales to raise money for class projects. She remarked that she was "proud of our class, and lucky to be a part of it."

As Freshman Vice-President, Lena Woods' main purpose was to assist the Freshman President in anyway possible. Whenever a student had a suggestion for improvement, Lena made sure the idea was relayed to the President. Lena ran for Vice-President because she wanted to get involved with the school. Her previous experience in student government helped her to succeed. According to Lena "the class of '82 was excellent."

Freshman Janet Waataja was "surprised and happy" when she was announced Secretary-Treasurer for the 1978-79 school year. Janet found that the position of secretary-treasurer placed her on the Executive Council. This was a change which included all of the class officers and the A.S.B. officers in the Executive Council, instead of just the A.S.B. officers. She felt that the main reason for this change was the need for representation and suggestions from all of the classes at the Executive Council meetings. To sum up the 1978-79 school year, Janet felt that the class of '82 was a very cooperative class that was not afraid to show its spirit and enthusiasm.

Fresh, new faces appeared on the Saddleback campus once again. The freshmen were here, bringing with them their energy and humor. Each new face filled with school pride, became part of Saddleback. Each displayed his pride by backing his teams at both assemblies and at games. These assemblies and games were rowdy and filled with Saddleback spirit. Although often bewildered, the freshmen were soon able to blend into the daily SHS routine. Both academically and scholastically, the class of 1982 was successful. The honors attained and the spirit exhibited made this a class to remember.

Looking Back On . . .

Adam Trujillo felt that it was an honor to be named the Sophomore Class President. Meeting new friends, attending camp, and promoting sophomore spirit were some of the things Adam enjoyed. Throughout the year, the sophomore class held meetings every two to three weeks. Money making projects ranged from selling See's suckers and balloons, to selling class necklaces. The monies earned financed the Junior-Senior prom. When asked what he thought of his class, Adam replied, "Sophomores were the most high-strung, spirited group of students at S.H.S.

Trisha Horn's memories of her Sophomore year as Vice-President were unforgettable. She felt that her duties, which included assisting the Sophomore-Class President, raising money for special activities, and elevating the school spirit, were successfully executed. Trisha stated that her memories were accented by the fact that the Sophomore Class became one of the most spirited and exciting classes of the past year. The positive attitude made 1978-1979 an indelible year for Trisha.

Lauren Chamberlain felt that the Sophomore Class was the most spirited ever. Her duties as Secretary-Treasurer included taking minutes at all the class meetings and taking care of the class funds. She also helped to decorate the forum for dances and helped to keep the Sophomore spirit high. Lauren's main reasons for holding her elected office were to get involved and to meet new people. Lauren hoped that the Sophomore class would continue to be a spirited and energetic group.

Whenever anyone spoke about school spirit, the words "Sophomore Class" were usually mentioned too. From academics to athletics, the Sophomores were involved! Class spirit was most evident at all assemblies. Winning the coveted spirit stick became a habit. As time passed, the entire student body looked up to the Sophomores spirit. The class of 1981 not only proved to be spirited at assemblies, but at the newly founded pep rallies held during lunch.

The Sophomores always seemed to be the first class out to the quad to participate in lunchtime activities.

Because of their involvement in school activities, the Sophomore class made their second year a more memorable one.

In the years to come, the faculty and student body would still remember the energetic class as one of the most outstanding classes in Sadlebacks history.

The Sophomore class took their apatheitc Freshmen year and turned it around to the delight of the student body.

Juniors Looking

As Junior Class President, Andrea Burch was directly responsible for making the Junior-Senior Prom a success. In order to accomplish this, balloons and candy were sold. A new Saddleback activity was "Hunk of the Month," a popular means of raising needed funds and acknowledging active students. Andrea was also responsible for promoting school spirit, which she felt was an important ingredient to make the 1978-1979 school year one to remember. She felt spirit was easy to achieve because she believed the class of "80" was number one!

Margo Beasley was very active completing her responsibilities as the Junior Class Vice President. Her duties included planning for the Junior-Senior Prom and sponsoring Junior fund-raising activities. As a class officer, Margo's main goals were to make school life more exciting and to involve the junior class in more school activities. She also hoped to make the 1978-1979 school year a memorable one for all juniors.

As the Junior Class Secretary-Treasurer, Ruth Escobar felt that her year in office slipped by very quickly. She thought back upon the fun she had had and the challenges she had met while helping the Junior Class gain more spirit and pride. Ruth acknowledged that her efforts were well applied because the students displayed more school spirit than they had in the past. Also, she regarded the Junior-Senior Prom as a success, and as a special event that would always be remembered.

The first class to graduate in the new decade was the enthusiastic class of 1980. By adding spirit and enthusiasm, the Juniors proved to be a unique and active class. The memories that they left behind were cherished by all who participated in the Junior Class activities. Not only did the talented Juniors bring athletic power to all sport teams, but they also brought academic honors to their class by scoring high on the C.A.T. Another memory which lingered in the minds of all who attended was the Junior-Senior Prom. Long, hard hours were devoted in order to raise the necessary funds that were essential in making the Prom a success. Stuffed animals were sold and Recreation Nights were sponsored to raise Prom money. The optimistic Junior Class met their promise of a highly spirited and successful new year.

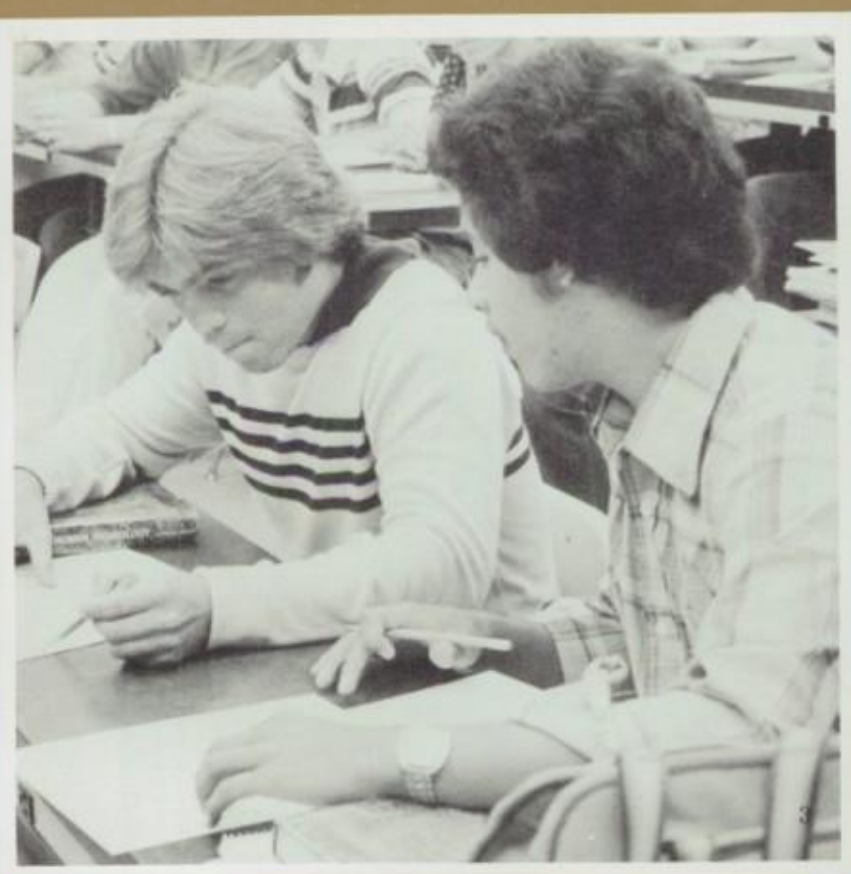
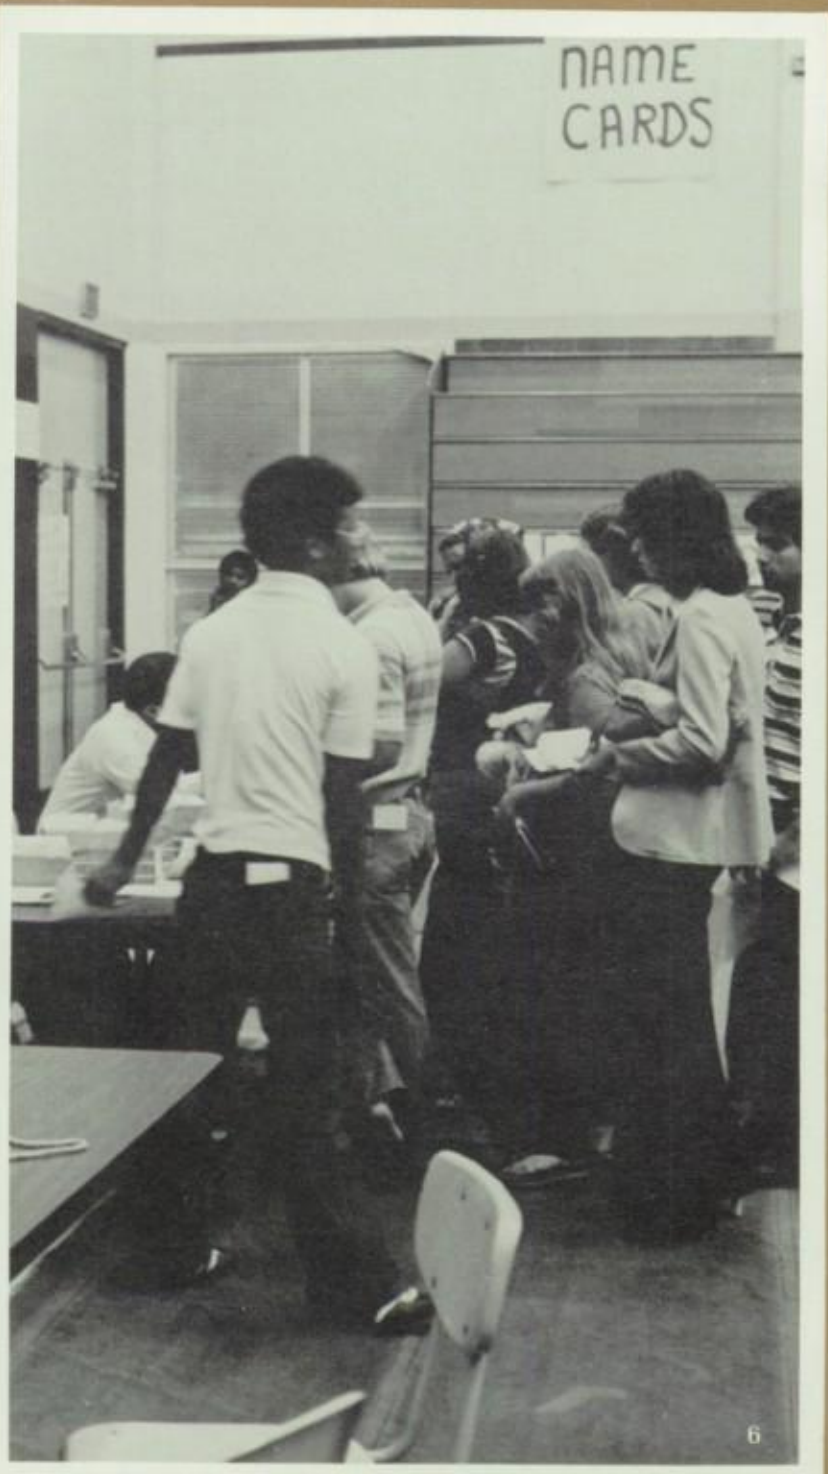
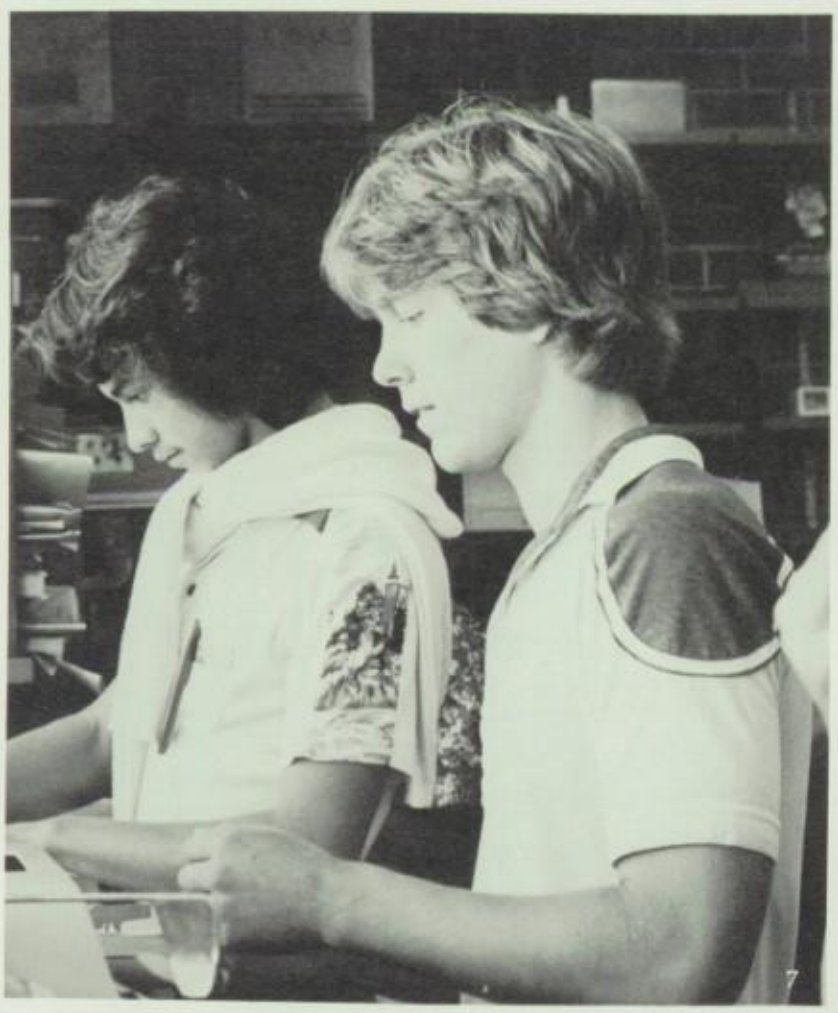
Memories: A Spectrum In Time

Memories were the portion of ourselves that we never lost because we always recalled those times in our past which meant so much to us. Each person who followed the Saddleback path left with a unique memory, whether it was of a class we enjoyed, a special dance, registering for classes, or just our simple lunchtime routine.

Memories were an important part of life. Through them, we always remembered the best times and were able to utilize the bad as learning experiences. Our aim was to keep our memories alive, forever.







1. Sitting with friends is one mean of breaking up a dull lunch-time routine
2. Marie Ocasion, freshman class president, participates at the Girls' League Freshman Orientation.
3. Adolph Pereira watches attentively as Ralph Murrieta assists him with a physiology assignment.
4. To make her lunch complete, Cindy Bevan purchases a candy bar from one of the more popular vending machines.
5. At the freshman orientation, Wanda Williams smiles cheerfully for the photographer.
6. Students gather around Mr. Don Barr in hopes of registering for Career Development.
7. Distributing Identification cards in the activities office is a responsibility shared by Jim VanBeek and Pat Flaherty.
8. Enjoying the disco band at the Homecoming Dance are Vicki Stumm and Rex Lau.

Though Some Tried To Stop It

Time Ticked On . . .

At one time or another, everyone felt the need to stop time. For some, it was that "special" date. For others, it was the morning they couldn't drag themselves out of bed in order to arrive at school on time. Still others wanted to stop time with the highlight of Homecoming Week and with the announcement of Queen Kathy and her court.
It seemed as if special moments slipped away much too quickly. Though some tried to stop it, time ticked on. Like the sands of an hourglass, our lives seemed to be slowly sifting away.

If only we could have stopped time and put our thoughts into perspective; to do what desperately needed to be done and to take inventory of our lives. If only we could have found the time to think our future through to its fullest; to make crucial decisions, and to carefully plan the rest of our lives.

As young adults, we believed that time knew no boundaries. We continued to live our lives in the hope that the future would include eternal youth, filled with happiness, contentment, and the attainment of our dreams. Still, the sands of time drifted slowly, and we found ourselves thinking about our past, reliving seemingly lost memories which we had stored forever.

1. During registration, Freshman students gather to discuss their fall schedules.
2. Assemblies were very popular among the senior class.
3. The empty scoreboard clearly signified the start of a football game.
4. Freshmen Orientation, sponsored by Girls League, allowed the new students a chance to become acquainted.
5. Short People, as performed by the Pep Squad, were featured during a humorous skit.
6. Many students wanted to take control of time.
7. Determned to improve his time, Bob Crockett keeps a steady pace.
8. Upon graduating, Laura Bridges becomes a mere reflection of the past.

HOURS TO REMEMBER

Although it was impossible to remember everything that we had experienced in high school, what we did recall was always vivid in our minds. Each memory, like a grain of sand falling through an hourglass, was a capsulized glimpse of the way we were and of what we had become.

As I peered into that hourglass, I was able to recall my first day at SHS, one filled with new faces, new fears and new anxieties. I remembered the "outrageous" lunch time bands, the dress-up days, the student body elections and the dances. As I continued to stare into my hourglass, I chuckled when I remembered that crucial assignment which had waited until the last minute to complete. The frustration of having parents who, to my youthful fantasies, seemed too strict and seemed to set up too many rules. The disasterous argument that had occurred between me and my best friend.

Captured by the memories, my thoughts turned to the future. I longed for the time when I would become my own person, when I would live by my rules and when I would make my own decisions. The time arrived all too soon and once again I longed for the freedoms of which accompany youth. Yes, my high school days were gone, but the memories would always be embedded in my mind.

Just as the grains of sand fell through our hourglass, time quickly escaped. Although hours were but scattered memories of the past, they were always . . . .

OURS TO REMEMBER

Tracey,
Well we finally made it through this year. It went by almost to fast for me to get to know you better, but there's always next year. But no more Mrs. Hughes she is too much! No more cutting little creatures in Mr. Havickorst class either. Well I think you'll probably have a good summer cuz you'll make it good. Right See ya next year.

THANKS FOR YOUR SUPPORT!

Love,
Stacy Coy

Tracey,
It was nice meeting you. We have had a lot of fun and a tiny bit of work in biology. Have fun this summer and I'll see ya around.
Friends 4-ever,
Robin Richey

Choose a tastier way of life at Del Taco.

Everything at Del Taco is just better. Our tacos are made with our own special blend of extra lean ground beef. So are our burritos. And our burgers are the meatiest, juiciest burgers in town. Another reason life is tastier at Del Taco. We don't prepare your order until after we hear it. You get your food fresh from the grill- not from under a heat lamp. Del Taco Dine in or drive through service.

Tell it to the Marines

For the past 200 years, whenever there was a national problem the answer was to tell it to the Marines. The Marines have always taken pride in their proud tradition and history. During peacetime, they enjoy what they have and what they can achieve. Being in the Marines, you're almost guaranteed fast promotion, advance training in the field you're most interested in, and the great feeling of being on the winning team! Want to find out more? Then "tell it to the Marines!" Talk to Sergeant Craig Fish, your Marine Corps Representative in Santa Ana. His phone number is 836-2107. Call now!

The Few. The Proud. The Marines.

Tracey,

Wow I cant believe were almost out! Two more years? MAYBE MORE We've known each other for a long long time. It seems like last week we were in eighth grade and hanging around in Bradford. But as you know nice friends dont last forever! not for reals. We hang around good people now (kinda) Well I want to take the time to thank you for all you've done for me!! Like the times when I was down and you'd make me feel better. You were the only one I could talk to when me & Bry were fighting. Cause you know how we would fight!!! Remember when we got busted in N.B. That was scary. But it was something to look back on! All the times you & Joel & Bry & I would go to the wedge and MAKE OUT HORNY! I'd they wish we had boyfriends that were good friends, good looking, sweet & rich!! Then we'd have it made. I hope at least you get a good boyfriend. But right now don't worry either way you'll get hurt! you can't live with or without them!! Remember we are going to get an apartment together when and if we ever get the bucks. We'd have a blast (even at the beach new babe's. every night) I don't it but if we want it all be here to do is give a little! Only kidding! Well I don't know. I hope you get all your goals out of life and stick with it at S.H.S. maybe some day I'll go back there. If there lucky! "A" Well Stacy Stay just the way you are and if any one puts you down, tell them to "JUMP ON it" Remember "we're perfect" Kelly's over perfect? HA!HA! please call me to go to the beach. SURFS UP ALWAYS! SWEET

LOVE ya 7 16

So Spaces,
Love your guts! Remember all the casual times when I was going out with Steve. I want a flyer or invitation to the party
HUGS! Later on the party,

TRACY, ix
Ouww! Schoolsout! and our beach house is right away. Right on.
I'm sure I'll see you there. You're a good friend.

HOURS TO

Party

Jose & Beverly 2-25-78 TKW always TKWA

Tracey,
For the few times I saw you in class this year it was enjoyable. I hope being in Iota Chi isn't going too make you stack up. (it won't) Party hardy this summer.
Love
Paul Schneider

See you next year in Mr. Whited's class. Have a good summer at the beach. Adam Bogan

Hey Tracy!
Schools about out now and it's summer time to see you at the beach. I have you in my classes next year and I'm looking forward to it.
Your friend
Lynne
Sunday. 11:--

Tracy, Yall a really great couple and more than friends. Have a great summer and make up for lost time. Remember all those times we had together. Remember the good times, and forget the bad. Things aren't always going your way, but you can't let it get you down. Be glad you have all your friends around you. Remember that you're not the only one with problems. Basura to much trouble. You don't want to mess up your pretty little head and call. 549-3208
Have a great summer
Love
Denise

P.S. Don't fight with Lynn so much

Tracey,
I bet you were glad in your state eg. class, so you could use my notes, but I didn't care. Have a great summer, and I'll see you at the beach!
love & Lots #44
